BORDEAUX

EDITORIAL

Discover outstanding wines

The discovery and rise to fame of the great Bordeaux terroirs date back many centuries.

Boasting a powerful natural landscape, our vast region has attracted generations of men and women determined to create the finest wines.

Driven by their never-ending quest for excellence and building on the diversity of soils and landscapes, they have produced unique vintages from a wealth of appellations all around the bustling city of Bordeaux.

The resulting wines express distinctive characteristics and a wide range of aromas and flavours.

Whether white, red or golden-yellow, the Great Growths all share the typical qualities found in outstanding wines, i.e. complexity, harmony, finesse and excellent ageing potential.

Such virtues fascinate and bring together wine enthusiasts from all over the world.

The Union des Grands Crus de Bordeaux's estates are constantly committed to promoting this universally recognised heritage and perpetuating the exceptional French lifestyle.

In this guide, Union members are delighted to present their estates and offer you a remarkable insight into the finest Bordeaux wines.

Happy reading!

Ronan Laborde

President of the Union des Grands Crus de Bordeaux

Today, the Cité du Vin is at the heart of Bordeaux's cultural scene. It has welcomed over two million visitors from around the world since it opened in 2016, linking the city and its vineyards.

They came to discover its futuristic architecture and permanent exhibition showcasing the various facets of "wine culture", including the history of wine which dates back thousands of years, the numerous terroirs, as well as winegrowers from around the world who have helped shape the diverse vineyard landscapes.

Throughout the year, the Cité du Vin offers a rich and varied programme consisting of international art exhibitions, performances, tastings, and exclusive events. It also hosts regular meetings with prominent figures in the world of wine.

It is run by the Foundation for Wine Culture and Civilisations, which aims to promote the universal and living heritage of wine. This has led to the creation of high-quality exhibitions, some of which are held in various cultural institutions worldwide.

The Union des Grands Crus de Bordeaux is very pleased and honoured to have been able to collaborate with the Foundation since the Cité du Vin was established. By providing ongoing support, it contributes to the Cité du Vin's reputation as an emblematic cultural centre.

Sylvie Cazes

President of the Foundation for Wine Culture and Civilisations

The history of the Nouvelle-Aquitaine region is intrinsically linked to wine, more than any other part of France or anywhere else in the world. Since Roman times, the vineyards have shaped the Bordeaux landscape, from Charente to Périgord, Marmande and the Pyrenean foothills. Thanks to prestigious terroirs and famous châteaux, outstanding thousand-year-old expertise and ancestral secrets transmitted worldwide by committed winegrowers, as well as legendary wine roads, the Nouvelle-Aquitaine region and its illustrious ambassador, Bordeaux, boast the title of the world's wine capital and play a major role in the global wine trade. Our magnificent region is also actively inventing the winegrowing of the future and adapting to climate change by turning its back on pesticides, in particular with the help of VitiREV, the regional federation of stakeholders committed to alternative production methods. And since Nouvelle-Aquitaine wine is intrinsically linked to the French way of life, combining tradition and modernity, we are as proud of it as it is irrevocably a part of our identity.

Alain Rousset,

President of the Regional Council of Nouvelle-Aquitaine

SECOND WINE

Le Petit Cheval

The chateau won its first gold medal at the 1878 Universal Exhibition in Paris. This distinction has been confirmed in every decade since. Thanks to maintained excellence over the years, Château Cheval Blanc is known as one of the most consistent wines in the world by both merchants and connoisseurs, and became a member of the exclusive "Club of Nine", comprising Bordeaux's greatest wines.

A page was turned in the autumn of 1998 when two old friends, connoisseurs and lovers of great wine, joined forces to purchase this jewel in Saint-Emilion.

Bernard Arnault and Baron Albert Frère breathed new life into Cheval Blanc, while respecting the chateau's history and existing facilities. They also placed their complete trust in the director, Pierre Lurton, to continue his good work. Today, their never-ending quest for perfection calls for enormous attention to detail and precision winemaking that is resolutely turned towards the future. In 2011, Christian de Portzamparc, winner of the Pritzker Architecture Prize, designed a cellar built as a continuation of the chateau. Reflecting the wishes of Baron Albert Frère and Bernard Arnault, this building is both futuristic and in keeping with the surrounding historic vineyard landscape, which is listed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site. Winegrowers have succeeded one another at Cheval Blanc for the past six centuries, in the context of a "wine civilisation" dating back 2,000 years.

SECOND WINE

Le Petit Mouton
de Mouton Rothschild

A first growth in the Pauillac appellation, Château Mouton Rothschild benefits from an outstanding natural terroir, featuring well-drained soils and excellent sun exposure. Its wines are the result of meticulous work in the vineyard and cellar, combining modern techniques with respect for traditional winegrowing methods.

Mouton Rothschild has achieved its status thanks to two outstanding personalities, Baron Philippe de Rothschild (1902-1988) and later his daughter Baroness Philippine (1933-2014). The estate is a work of art and beauty, featuring a strikingly spectacular large cellar, a magnificent vat room inaugurated in 2013 and its famous

Museum of Wine in Art. The latter displays two millennia of works relating to vine and wine, as well as the unique and unmissable "Art et l'Étiquette" ("Art and Wine Labels") exhibition, bringing together all the works created by the most famous contemporary artists (including Miró, Chagall, Braque, Picasso, Tàpies, Francis Bacon, Dalí, Balthus, and Jeff Koons) to illustrate the labels of this fine wine since 1945.

Today, Mouton Rothschild is owned by Baroness Philippine de Rothschild's three children: Camille Sereys de Rothschild, Philippe Sereys de Rothschild and Julien de Beaumarchais de Rothschild. Faithful to the efforts of their grandfather and mother, all three are dedicated to following Baron Philippe de Rothschild's motto, "Live for the vine", by being there in good and bad times, serving the vineyard with skill and craft, and honouring it with art.

An impressive 15th-century manor house – more a fortified farm than a château – overlooks the Sauternes countryside around forty kilometres south-east of the city of Bordeaux.

This building became famous as long ago as the Enlightenment. Its name: Château d'Yquem.

Château d'Yquem is the result of a mysterious alchemy that transmutes the terroir, expertise, and a microscopic fungus, Botrytis cinerea (found in the region, and, more precisely, in this estate) into a sublime golden-coloured wine.

In the autumn, if morning mists are followed by sunny afternoons with a slight easterly wind, it is not long before pickers spread out over the hundred hectares of vines to pick only the Sémillon and Sauvignon Blanc grapes attacked by noble rot.

Pickers pass through each plot an average of six times during the harvest in keeping with the Sauternes tradition, dating back to the 19th century.

The grapes are pressed as soon as they arrive at the cellar and the juice is immediately put into new oak barrels for fermentation.

The LVMH (Moët Hennessy-Louis Vuitton) group have been majority shareholders of this Premier Cru Classé Supérieur in the 1855 classification since 1999, and Pierre Lurton has been the manager since 2004.

Yquem's philosophy has remained the same for years: cooperating with nature to produce an average of just one glass of this famous wine per vine!

In certain years, the entire crop is rejected, and not sold under the château name. Nine vintages were not marketed by Yquem in the 20th century. 2012 is the first such year in the 21st century.

Pessac-Léognan

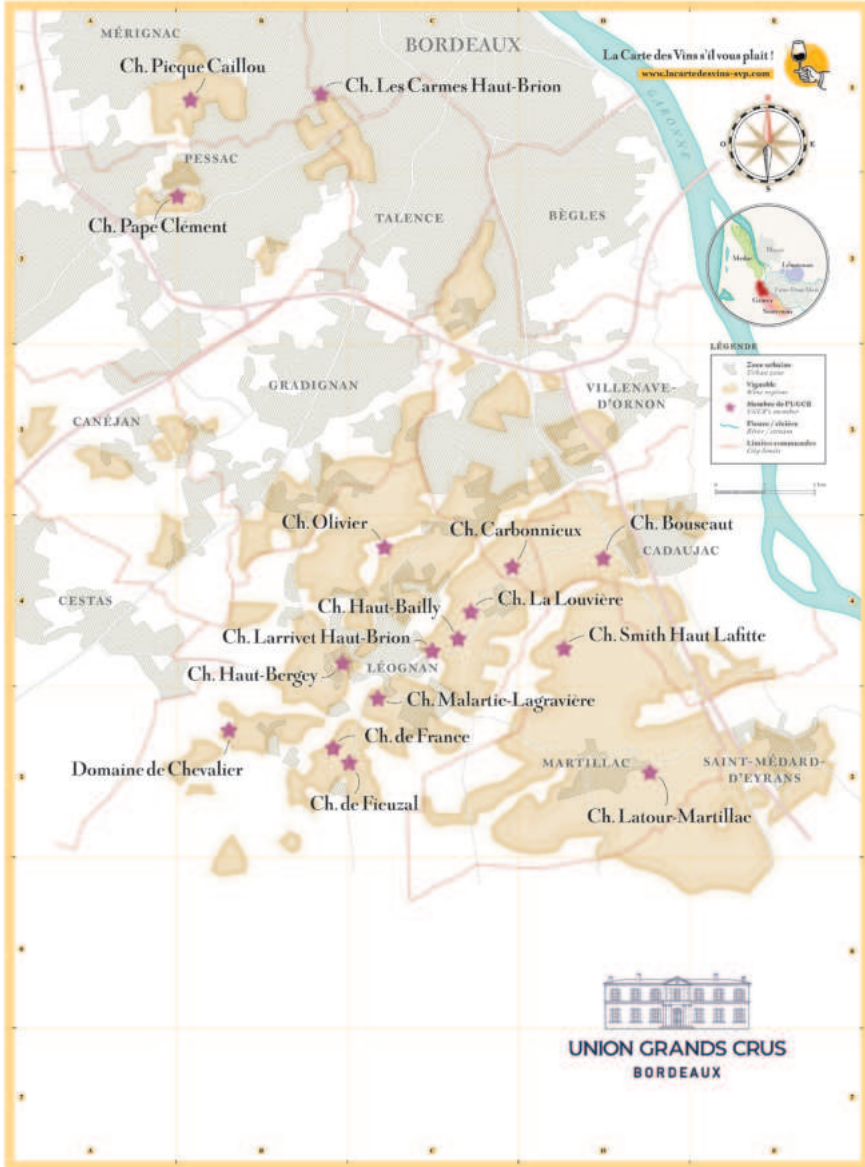

Although Pessac-Léognan is the youngest appellation in Bordeaux (1987), it is paradoxically the cradle of winegrowing in the Gironde department. From the time they were first planted to the present day, i.e. for some 21 centuries, the vineyards of Pessac-Léognan have contributed to the prestige and development of Bordeaux wine.

The first diocesan records, dating back to 1382, mention wine production here, including the estate belonging to Bertrand de Goth (elected Pope under the name of Clément V in 1305), which was later given to the archbishops of Bordeaux. Since then, many well-known people have lived or stayed in the region. The Black Prince owned a hunting lodge in Léognan, while Montesquieu, not only a famous philosopher and author of "The Spirit of Laws", but also a winegrower, was undoubtedly inspired by the wines of the Graves – which also guaranteed him financial independence.

The very notion of "cru" and production of the first great Bordeaux wines can be traced back to Château Haut-Brion in the late 17th century. This prestigious estate is now at the forefront of the Graves Great Growths, all of which are located in the Pessac-Léognan appellation.

These estates, members of the Union des Grands Crus de Bordeaux, bear witness to an outstanding history.

Les Chênes de Bouscaut

Château Bouscaut is one of the six Bordeaux great growths classified both in red and white. This estate has belonged to the Lurton family since 1979. It has been in the hands of Sophie Lurton and her husband Laurent Cogombles for the past 30 years.

"The Bouscaut terroir is comprised primarily of good clay and gravel on a limestone subsoil. This large layer of limestone is conducive to perfect ripeness, even during warm years, ensuring well-balanced wines with wonderful freshness.

Along with our strong, dynamic team, we are dedicated to preserving the integrity of this family estate and developing it in keeping with our values of precision, close ties, and respecting the terroir and the environment."

Château Carmes Haut-Brion benefits from a unique location as the only Bordeaux chateau situated in Bordeaux. It is therefore one of the last enclosed urban vineyards.

From 1584 to 1789, it belonged to the Carmelite religious order, which explains the origin of its name. After the French Revolution, it was acquired by the Chantecaille family (a group of Bordeaux wine merchants) and then sold in late 2010 to the Pichet Group who made substantial investments in the estate, including renovating the vineyard and installing a new winemaking cellar designed by Philippe Starck, featuring the latest barrel ageing techniques.

Les Carmes Haut Brion is a haven of peace and tranquillity in the heart of the oldest part of the Bordeaux wine region. It has an astonishing microclimate that protects the vines from spring frosts and is conducive to early ripening.

Domaine de Chevalier

CRU CLASSE DE GRAVES

OWNER: THE BERNARD FAMILY

Domaine de Chevalier is a very ancient estate located in Léognan, the capital of the Graves region. It was designated as "Chibaley" (the Gascon word for chevalier) on the 1763 map produced by the engineer Pierre de Belleyme.

Chevalier's successive owners have never abandoned the name of "domaine" in favour of the more recent term "château", reflecting the estate's long history.

In 1983, Domaine de Chevalier was acquired by the Bernard family, leading French producers of wine spirits and major Bordeaux wine merchants. Since then, Chevalier has been managed by Olivier Bernard, who makes it his mission to perpetuate the balance, finesse and elegance of this outstanding wine.

Domaine de Chevalier red is one of the jewels of the Bordeaux great growths. Domaine de Chevalier white is one of the world's greatest dry white wines.

Château de France is located on the highest slopes in Léognan, on the tallest of four gravelly terraces deposited by the Garonne River over the years when it burst its banks. The sunny microclimate and unusual nature of the soil account for Château de France's unique terroir.

The Thomassin family acquired Château de France in 1971 and continually invested in renovating the entire estate, including the vineyard, vat room and cellar, with one goal in mind: to make outstanding wines.

Arnaud Thomassin arrived at the estate in 1994 and is currently the manager.

Château de France is distributed in France and around the world. The wine's fine reputation is an acknowledgement of its quality as well as the major efforts accomplished over the past 40 years.

The first wine, Château de France, and the second, Château Coquillas, are produced in both red and white.

Located just outside Bordeaux, Château Haut-Bailly has stood in the midst of a single-block, 30-hectare vineyard for over four centuries.

Haut-Bailly's reputation as one of the greatest Bordeaux wines dates back to the 19th century and the word "outstanding" most often associated with the château reflects the superb quality of its wines.

The estate has very stringent standards that entail using a combination of traditional and modern methods which respect the environment. A quarter of the vines at Haut-Bailly are a hundred years old, and the estate has a unique terroir resulting in wines of amazing regularity. These great wines have inimitable style, balance and elegance, whatever the vintage.

Château Haut-Bergey

OWNER: PAUL GARCIN

Château Haut-Bergey is owned by the Garcin family and dates back to the 15th century.

Thanks to his philosophy promoting organic and biodynamic vineyard management, all of Paul Garcin's red and white wines have obtained organic and Biodyvin certification.

The outstanding grapes reflect the geological composition and complex living soil of the village of Léognan, which helps produce wines that fully express the finesse of the terroir.

Natural and delicate fermentation followed by fine-tuned ageing create vibrant, complex and precise wines.

As of 1840, Château Larrivet Haut-Brion has been cited among the leading wines in the commune of Léognan. In 1987, the Gervoson family purchased the estate and dedicated themselves to restoring it to its former glory.

The vineyard spans 100 hectares, including 75 hectares of vines on a patchwork of soils.

The estate is a magnificent manor house dating back to the 19th century, surrounded by 12 hectares of grounds providing a haven for biodiversity in the heart of the town of Léognan.

Nowadays, three technicians, Bruno, Charlotte and François, work in close collaboration to inject a new technical impetus. They are dedicated to showcasing the full potential of the estate's vineyards.

The vessels are adapted to the identity of each plot, resulting in bespoke ageing in 12 concrete eggs, 14 oak vats, 16 large casks, 31 concrete vats, 48 amphorae and nearly 500 barrels. The estate produces very elegant, well-balanced and fruity wines with good length on the palate. These easygoing wines can be enjoyed now or in a few years' time.

Château Latour-Martillac

CRU CLASSE DE GRAVES

OWNER: THE JEAN KRESSMANN FAMILY

Designated a Graves classified growth for both its red and white wines in 1953, Château Latour-Martillac owes its name to the tower in the courtyard, the vestige of a fortress built in the 12th century by the ancestors of the famous winegrower and philosopher, Montesquieu.

Located on an outstanding Pyrenean gravel rise, this estate caught the eye of Édouard Kressmann, a Bordeaux wine merchant, in 1871. He was particularly impressed by the quality of the white wines. His eldest son, Alfred, finally bought the estate in 1930. He expanded the red wine vineyard and, in 1934, designed the bottle label with his son, Jean, featuring gold and sand-coloured diagonal stripes still in use today.

Nowadays, the estate's technical teams, led by Technical Director, Edouard Kressmann, perpetuate the family tradition of producing quality rather than quantity from this outstanding Graves terroir.

Thanks to their elegant structure and good balance, Latour-Martillac red and white wines are widely recognised among the most reliable in the Pessac-Léognan appellation.

Since acquiring Château La Louvière in 1965, André Lurton has worked tirelessly to restore the estate to its former 18th century glory. Château La Louvière became a listed historic monument in 1991 and is one of the most visited wine tourism sites in the Pessac-Léognan appellation.

Tradition and technology combine at the estate to express the full potential of each vintage: La Louvière is famous for its elegant white wines and complex reds, distributed worldwide.

A resolutely forward-thinking estate, Château La Louvière has been committed to producing environmentally sustainable wines since 2010. In 2017, the estate obtained High Environmental Value certification HEV3, rewarding the efforts made to reduce its carbon footprint.

Located on one of the region's most beautiful gravelly rises, Château Malartic-Lagravière was purchased by the Count of Malartic in the 18th century. It was formerly known as Domaine de La Gravière up until 1850, when it was given its current name.

Since acquiring the estate in 1997, the Bonnie family has worked hard to enhance its wines, steered by an eco-friendly philosophy promoting limited human intervention that respects biodiversity, light horse-drawn ploughing, and cover crops maintained by grazing animals. In the cellar, gravity flow, gentle extraction and precise methods are used to express the excellence of the terroir. One of the jewels of the Bordeaux region, Malartic wines are intense, well-balanced and elegant with a "high-end" signature.

Château Olivier emerges in a vast clearing in the middle of a large estate consisting of forests, meadows, and vines. Its distinctive architecture, ponds, and attractive outbuildings make for an outstanding property in a magnificent natural setting. Olivier is a very ancient seignury, whose history dates back to the early Middle Ages. The estate has belonged to the Bethmann family since the 19th century.

In recent years, they have invested heavily in restructuring the vineyards.

A detailed soil survey revealed new potential for the terroir and the vineyard was eventually turned back to its 18th-century configuration. Five different grape varieties are grown on gravelly soil atop a clay-limestone bedrock.

Château Olivier's red and white wines were classified in 1953.

Château Pape Clément

CRU CLASSE DE GRAVES

OWNER: BERNARD MAGREZ

"Seven centuries of history for a legendary wine"

Château Pape Clément is a Graves great growth in the Pessac-Léognan appellation. Built on an outstanding soil, the estate is the culmination of history, passion and hard work. Château Pape Clément is one of the oldest Bordeaux great growths. In 2022, the estate celebrated its 770th harvest.

The history of Château Pape Clément is marked by the man who bequeathed it his name and made its wine an icon: Bertrand de Goth (1264-1314) who became Pope Clément V. A lover of the land and already turned towards innovation, he contributed to the development of "modern" winegrowing in the 13th century and was one of the first to plant vines in rows, facilitating harvests and vineyard operations.

Seven centuries later, Bernard Magrez took over the estate and is still cultivating this pioneering spirit. Thanks to hard work, constantly challenging practices, the combination of tradition and innovation and a remarkable terroir, Château Pape Clément is now a Graves great growth which continues to surprise each year with its outstanding wines.

A close neighbour of the prestigious Haut-Brion and Pape Clément estates, Pique Caillou has stony soil which produces classy, elegant wines with excellent ageing potential.

In 2007, Paulin Calvet took over management and injected new life into the estate. That same year, consulting oenologists Professor Denis Dubourdieu and Madame Valérie Lavigne began providing technical assistance to the new team. Their combined efforts have resulted in a first-class wine of remarkable balance and delicacy.

Founded in 1365, this Grand Cru Classé owes its reputation as "the quintessential Graves" and characteristic smoky notes to its sloped terroir containing semi-precious stones such as quartzite and angatoid.

Since purchasing the estate in 1990, Daniel and Florence Cathiard have committed themselves to bio-precision practices which combine innovative viticultural and winemaking techniques with great respect for the vines, soil, and environment.

Organic winegrowing using biodynamic methods and without chemical inputs contributes to the unique expression of the terroir, resulting in elegant, complex, powerful and well-balanced wines.

Graves

The Graves region, stretching south from the city of Bordeaux to Langon and beyond, produces a wide range of excellent wines. It has been famous for its dry and semi-sweet white wines, as well as its red wines, as early as the 13th and 14th centuries. These were very popular with the English and Dutch, who spread their reputation worldwide.

The appellation is the only one in the world whose name identifies the nature of its terroir: graves = gravel. The soil is ideal for winegrowing, and virtually unsuited to any other crop.

The history of Château de Chantegrive dates back to 1966 with the purchase of two hectares of vines by Henri and Françoise Lévêque. Today, the 90-hectare estate has become one of the most important and prestigious in the Graves appellation.

Located close to the Garonne River, the outstanding Graves terroir naturally produces fine red and white wines.

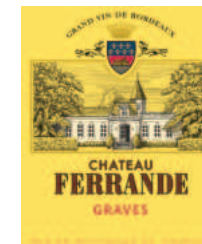

Consultant oenologist Hubert de Bouïard, who also owns Château Angélus with his family, has ensured the consistency and success of each vintage since 2006.

In 2017, Château de Chantegrive obtained High Environmental Value certification, reflecting the winegrowers' efforts and commitments to sustainable viticulture.

Château Ferrande

OWNER: THE CASTEL FAMILY

Château Ferrande is located in the commune of Castres-Gironde, in the heart of the Graves appellation.

The estate is a beautiful manor house restored in the late 19th century.

The known presence of Romans in the commune as early as the 1st century B.C. makes it more than likely that wine was produced there at a very early date. Château Ferrande has been managed by several important figures over the centuries.

The estate was owned by Admiral Delnaud before it was acquired by the Castel family in 1992, after sixteen years of being operated on a contractual basis.

The wines' unique style, combined with a never-ending quest for quality, enabled Château Ferrande to develop an international reputation and enter into the exclusive Union des Grands Crus circle.

In 1646, Chevalier Guillaume Rahoul built a lovely manor house which he named after himself. The vineyards were expanded in the late 18th century by Pierre Balguerie, the first prefect of the Gers department, who turned Chateau Rahoul into a fully-fledged winegrowing estate.

Thanks to English, Australian, and Danish owners, Château Rahoul attained international recognition starting in the 1970s, when the estate was given the nickname "United Nations".

Alain Thiénot, originally from Champagne, who already owned vineyards in Bordeaux bought Rahoul in 1986 and undertook an ambitious modernisation programme.

In 2007, Dourthe joined the Thiénot group, reflecting a major step forward in their uncompromising approach to quality in the vineyard and cellar. The estate has been Terra Vitis-certified since 2016, confirming its commitment to sustainable agriculture.

Saint-Emilion Grand Cru

Edward I, King of England, delimited the Jurisdiction of Saint-Emilion, consisting of nine parishes, in 1289. Since then, only wines produced in one of these communes is entitled to the Saint-Emilion appellation. Saint-Emilion's superb reputation is mainly due to the appellation's outstanding terroir, where vines are grown on gravelly soil, slopes, and a famous limestone plateau.

The picturesque medieval village of Saint-Emilion is an architectural jewel, built in a half-circle on hills opposite the Dordogne. The steep, narrow streets, Romanesque and Gothic churches, monasteries, and cloisters make this one of the loveliest villages in France. Listed as a UNESCO World Heritage Site, Saint-Emilion is an outstanding location which the members of the Union des Grands Crus will be delighted to help you discover.

The name of this 10.5-hectare estate has two different origins. "Balestard" was a former canon of the Chapitre chapel of Saint-Emilion, and "La Tonnelle" refers to the 15th-century stone watchtower that still stands in the heart of the vineyard.

The château's reputation dates back to François Villon who cited it in a poem that appears on the bottle label.

Ideally located a stone's throw from the medieval town of Saint-Emilion, atop a slope on a clay-limestone plateau, the charming vineyard is currently owned by Jacques Capdemourlin and benefits from a superb terroir.

The wine is fermented using traditional methods and aged in oak barrels, half of which are new every year. Combining respect for the terroir, tradition, and the best of modern techniques, Balestard La Tonnelle produces full-bodied wines of extreme elegance, and one of the finest great growths in Saint-Emilion.

SAINT-ÉMILION GRAND CRU

Château Beau-Séjour Bécot

PREMIER GRAND CRU CLASSE

OWNER: THE BECOT FAMILY

Beau-Séjour Bécot is located to the west of the legendary town of Saint-Emilion on the Saint-Martin de Mazerat limestone plateau. It was listed as a Saint-Emilion Premier Grand Cru Classé in the first 1955 classification thanks to its unique terroir. In 1969, Michel Bécot purchased the iconic château and established its fine reputation worldwide. He also turned seven hectares of former underground limestone quarries into a cellar to store ageing bottles under ideal conditions. Over 100 Beau-Séjour Bécot vintages are kept there, away from light and variations in temperature. His two sons, Gérard and Dominique, later introduced numerous technical innovations to make the most of this outstanding terroir.

In 2023, a new vat room and ageing cellar were inaugurated to produce wines that reflect the soul of this legendary terroir and the perfect balance between the climate, soil and winegrowers that shape the vineyards. The new generation, led by Juliette Bécot and Julien Barthe, is dedicated to pursuing the efforts already undertaken at the estate and promoting the family's enthusiasm and never-ending quest to make an elegant, charming wine.

Château Berliquet is the expression of a landscape, a raw jewel crafted by the winegrower's hands. Suspended on the slopes of the Saint-Emilion plateau, the well-preserved, verdant surroundings of the estate's grounds are filled with emblematic landmarks - a mill, a washhouse, rows of cypress trees, etc. The vines have been grown in a single block, with plot division unchanged for nearly 200 years, following the pace of nature. Helped by his horse, the winegrower moulds the ground and reveals it to the light, exposing all its ruggedness. Below the surface, in the quarries, the blend gradually fulfils its promises in barrels and amphorae. Shaped by the tension of the limestone and the power of the clay, the wines boast an earthy character, imbued with remarkable finesse.

Berliquet has belonged to the Chanel group since 2017.

Currently under conversion to organic viticulture, it will produce its first certified vintage in 2024.

Built on the slopes of the Saint-Emilion plateau, Château Canon is an imposing estate. Its tower faces the village bell tower, which can be reached on foot between two low, honey-coloured stone walls. Here, earth and man intertwine, with a shared, intimate understanding of one another. The vineyards of Château Canon are planted on an outstanding, homogeneous terroir atop the famous Saint-Emilion limestone plateau. Rooted in the freshness of the underground quarries, with their leaves exposed to the wind and sun, the vines flourish in a play of light and shade, which bestow it with a unique signature. A voluptuous fruitiness is underpinned by mineral tension.

Located on the famous slope (and the foot of the slope) south of the medieval village of Saint-Emilion, Château Canon La Gaffelière has belonged to the Counts von Neipperg since 1971. The terroir consists of clay-limestone and clay-sand soil that is particularly efficient at capturing and retaining heat. The choice of grape varieties is rather atypical for the appellation in light of the soil, characterised by an almost perfect 50/50 divide between Merlot and Cabernet.

The estate, which has been certified organic since the 2014 vintage, produces well-focussed, well-structured, complex, and unfailingly elegant wines, which reflect the uncompromising way in which they are made.

Representing some eight centuries of family winegrowing traditions, Count Stephan von Neipperg has succeeded in transforming Château Canon La Gaffelière into one of the leading Saint-Emilion Grands Crus Classés, thanks to a winegrowing philosophy that gives priority to respecting the estate's outstanding terroir.

Château Cap de Mourlin

GRAND CRU CLASSE

OWNER: THE CAPDEMOURLIN FAMILY

The Capdemourlin family has owned vineyards in Saint-Emilion for four centuries, as attested by a wine sales contract dating from 1647. In an unusual departure from practices at the time, this document mentions the place name of the vineyard and the name of the wine, one of the oldest in Saint-Emilion.

In 1983, Jacques Capdemourlin, the present owner, reunited the estate. He also undertook a major renovation in order to introduce modern techniques to ferment and age the wine, including installing a vat room, air-conditioned area for malolactic fermentation and barrel ageing cellar.

The 14-hectare estate is ideally located on slopes north of the town of Saint-Emilion, where it benefits from a clay-limestone and clay-siliceous terroir. Château Cap de Mourlin wine is both generous and extremely elegant, with a very expressive bouquet. It is one of the most highly-reputed wines of Saint-Emilion.

Château La Couspaude is located in the heart of Saint-Émilion, near the famous monolithic church carved out of solid rock. La Couspaude has been the pride and joy of the Aubert family (who also own other estates in the region) for over a century. The Auberts have been making fine wine in Bordeaux for over two centuries and have maintained the family tradition of quality and respect for the terroir to the present day.

La Couspaude, was called "La Croix Paute" in the Middle Ages in reference to the cross that still marks the intersection of two roads in front of the estate, and which served as a meeting point for pilgrims on their way to Santiago de Compostela.

Entirely surrounded by walls, like all of the village's most ancient vineyards, the estate is situated on the Saint-Émilion limestone plateau.

Château La Couspaude also has underground cellars where the wine is fermented and aged in barrels, as well as a magnificent reception room.

Château Dassault

GRAND CRU CLASSE

OWNER: DASSAULT WINE ESTATES

When Marcel Dassault acquired Château Couperie, he gave his name to the estate, replanted the vineyards and modernised the facilities. Château Dassault has been a classified great growth since 1969. Along with Château La Fleur and Château Faurie de Soucard, which he purchased in 2002 and 2013 respectively, Marcel Dassault now owns 60 hectares of vines which serve as a testimony to his unwavering dedication to high standards. Over the past ten years, Dassault has invested in eco-friendly viticulture. The estate is committed to an Environmental Management System (EMS) and a CSR policy, as well and has also obtained HEV3, ISO 1400 and Bee Friendly certification. Vineyard operations follow the main agro-environmental principles, from preserving the soils to promoting biodiversity and optimising resources.

Château La Dominique is superbly located in the northwest part of Saint-Émilion next to the Pomerol appellation and has been producing wine since the 16th century. Acquired by Clément Fayat in 1969, the estate has undergone continuous improvements ever since.

La Dominique has 29 hectares of vines grown on a remarkable terroir adjoining the region's most famous vineyards: Cheval Blanc, Figeac, La Conseillante, and L'Évangile. The clay-gravel and clay-limestone soils give tension, finesse and minerality to the Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Sauvignon Blanc grapes planted there.

The team work meticulously in the vineyard down to the final blend to produce generous wines with well-focussed, silky tannins in state-of-the-art facilities designed by Jean Nouvel. Inaugurated in 2014, the new building features a wine cellar and visitor reception area, and offers a magnificent view of the surrounding vineyards!

Château-Figeac

PREMIER GRAND CRU CLASSE "A"

OWNER: THE MANONCOURT FAMILY

Château-Figeac, a Saint-Émilion Premier Grand Cru Classé "A", has belonged to the family of Thierry Manoncourt – one of the founders of the UGCB – for over 130 years. With its 18th-century chateau, 13 hectares of grounds and 41 hectares of vines in a single block, the estate is one of the most prestigious in the Bordeaux region.

Château-Figeac wines owe their greatness to an outstanding terroir, shaped by three gravelly rises on a blue clay subsoil, and grape varieties consisting of 2/3 Cabernet and 1/3 Merlot. Thanks to this unique combination, Château-Figeac produces very fine, complex and elegant wines with good freshness and remarkable length on the palate.

In 2021, the estate inaugurated new cellars and reception areas, to perpetuate its values of excellence and authenticity.

Clos Fourtet

PREMIER GRAND CRU CLASSE

OWNER: PHILIPPE CUVELIER

An illustrious vineyard at the gateway to Saint-Emilion

Located next to the village of Saint-Emilion, at the foot of the collegiate church and the Great Wall, Clos Fourtet has always been an elite first great growth.

The wines are made from Merlot, Saint-Emilion's distinctive grape variety, grown on the plateau on clay-limestone soil, and traditionally aged in barrel in former stone quarries. Their aromatic purity and precision on the palate is a reflection of this outstanding terroir.

In 2001, the Cuvelier family took over Clos Fourtet and invested in the estate to help it achieve its full potential. Their hard work and high standards propelled the wines among the very best in the appellation. Their approach to high-precision viticulture and commitments to protecting the environment have resulted in a wine in keeping with the times.

Château Franc Mayne

GRAND CRU CLASSE

OWNERS: THOMAS SAVARE AND HIS FAMILY

Château Franc Mayne is a Saint-Emilion great growth, which owes its name to its location adjacent to the Côte des Francs appellation. The vines are planted on slopes and on Saint Emilion's prestigious limestone plateau. An ancient Gallo-Roman road runs alongside the estate. A former coaching inn on the estate bears witness to the steady flow of pilgrims on their way to Santiago de Compostela.

Attracted by the breathtaking landscape, Thomas Savare and his family purchased Franc Mayne in February 2018 with the aim to give a new impetus to this outstanding vineyard by producing environmentally-friendly wines that are a true reflection of their terroir. The estate has been organically certified since 2022.

Château Franc Mayne is a must for tourists, offering spectacular views over the two-hectare underground cellars. The estate is also home to the beautifully renovated Relais de Franc Mayne hotel.

Château Grand Mayne

GRAND CRU CLASSE

OWNERS: THE NONY FAMILY

Built in the 16th century, Grand Mayne originally belonged to the vast Le Maine estate, which the Laveau family acquired in 1685.

After two centuries of ownership, the "Laveau Empire" was gradually dismantled. It eventually found stability thanks to Jean Nony, a wine merchant who fell under the charm of this splendid manor house (or "mayne" in old French) and its terroir, and purchased it in 1934.

A listed historic monument, the château is surrounded by 17 hectares of vines planted in a single block, ideally located on the finest clay-limestone terroirs which make Saint-Émilion wines so special.

By investing in state-of-the-art winemaking facilities and imbuing their wines with distinctive charm, Jean-Pierre (son of Jean) and his wife Marie-Françoise catapulted Grand Mayne to being one of the most promising and talked-about classified growths in Saint-Émilion.

Nowadays, the ambitious third generation, led by Jean-Antoine and Damien Nony, has put their heart and soul into pursuing this family affair, in a never-ending quest for excellence.

Château Pavie Macquin
 chateau_paviemacquin

This estate was founded by Albert Macquin (1852-1911) who studied viticulture at Paris-Grignon and Montpellier, and became a specialist in grafting and root stocks. Saint-Emilion can be grateful to him for introducing grafted vines, which saved the vineyards from ruin by phylloxera in the late 19th century.

Owned by the Corre-Macquin family, the vineyard has a prime location atop the Saint-Emilion plateau above the limestone ledge at the foot of the slope. Facing westward, opposite the medieval town, Pavie Macquin overlooks the small Fongaban Valley.

The clay-limestone soil provides superb natural drainage and a regular water supply. The high concentration of clay results in generous, powerful, and fresh wines.

One of Saint-Emilion's flagship estates, Pavie Macquin combines traditional methods in the vineyard and cellar as well as a selection of modern techniques.

Château Soutard is a Saint-Emilion Grand Cru Classé, located close to the medieval town of Saint-Emilion.

The first evidence of Soutard dates back to 1513 with a reference to Bourdieu de Mayne de Soutard ("Bourdieu" designating a Gascon estate surrounding a farm and windmill).

In 2006, Château Soutard was acquired by AG2R LA MONDIALE, the leading social protection group in France which sought to restore it to its former glory.

Château Soutard is situated on a unique limestone plateau home to all of the Saint-Emilion Grands Cru vineyards and is committed to sustainable vineyard management.

The wines produced here express their magnificent terroir in their bouquet, elegance, great finesse, and natural power.

Located on the famous gravelly soils of Saint-Emilion, Château La Tour Figeac was created in 1879, the date when it became separated from Château Figeac. The fact that it has belonged to the privileged group of classified great growths since 1955 confirms the quality of both its terroir and its wines.

The Rettenmaier family has ensured the destiny of the estate since 1973. Convinced that only the natural balance of the vines can produce high-quality grapes, they manage the vineyard according to the principles of eco-friendly viticulture, with the estate being organically certified since 2021.

All decisions in the vineyard and cellar depend on the specificities of the vintage and, since 1997, following the advice of Derenoncourt SARL (J. Lavenu).

The resulting wines are smooth and elegant with distinctive notes of violet, eucalyptus and mint.

Château Troplong Mondot

PREMIER GRAND CRU CLASSE

OWNER: SCOR

Château Troplong Mondot, a Saint-Emilion Premier Grand Cru Classé, elegantly stands out thanks to its wine profile, vineyard management (the vineyard is laid out like a garden) and approach to welcoming visitors.

Situated on the highest point of the appellation, this 43-hectare estate with vines grown in a single block benefits from ideal sun exposure and geological conditions. The unique diversity of the soils produces powerful, elegant, complex and precise wines.

Troplong Mondot is set against a serene backdrop, with breathtaking views of the village of Saint-Emilion. With its elegant, chic country style rooms, immersive vineyard tours aboard an old Land Rover and a Michelin-starred restaurant, guests are sure to enjoy an unforgettable experience.

The estate has been committed to environmental protection for several decades, based on horse-drawn methods throughout the vineyards, no herbicides / no insecticides, permaculture gardens, chickens and pigs to eliminate 100% of organic waste, and the transformation of vine cuttings into pellets used to heat all the buildings. Since 2021, Troplong Mondot has been a Silver member of the International Wineries for Climate Action, which is committed to carbon neutrality by 2050.

 Chateau TrotteVieille

Legend has it that Trottevieille (meaning “Oldtrot”) was named after an old lady who lived there several centuries ago, who was known for “trotting around”. A coach stop was located near the château whenever a carriage stopped there, the old lady (known as la vieille) “trotted out” to hear all the latest news. A 15th century parchment written in Gascon proves that the name was already in use then.

The first wine of Château TrotteVieille has been classified a Saint-Emilion Premier Grand Cru since the classification was first established, with the second wine labelled “Dame de TrotteVieille”.

The vineyard where this Premier cru is grown, known as “l’Enclos de TrotteVieille”, consists of a 30-cm layer of clay soil on a limestone plateau, accounting for the wine’s outstanding minerality, as well as a small plot of Cabernet Franc pre-phylloxera vines.

Château TrotteVieille wine is renowned for its elegance, freshness, long aftertaste, and exquisite minerality.

In 1999, Jean-Luc and Murielle invested in cool and late-ripening terroirs on the Saint-Etienne de Lisse plateau.

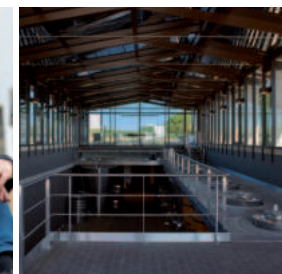

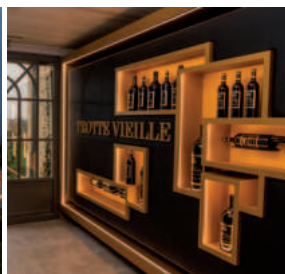

A pioneer in the garage wine movement, Château Valandraud was promoted to Saint-Emilion Premier Grand Cru Classé status in 2012, and renewed in 2022.

Since the 2020 vintage, the estate has benefited from a state-of-the-art bioclimatic cellar dug into the limestone plateau. The building is covered with solar panels and a green roof, reflecting the Château’s solid philosophy to produce the best wine possible while respecting the environment.

Château Villemaurine is a jewel of an estate home to eight hectares of vines in the medieval town of Saint-Emilion, combining centuries of history and a terroir with amazing potential.

The vines are grown in a single block atop an extraordinary network of underground quarries, propitious to ageing wines in the best possible conditions. These quarries stand as a precious testimony to the ancient expertise of stone mining.

The wines of Château Villemaurine express all the minerality and character of Saint-Emilion's limestone plateau. The fine, elegant tannins and complex aromas are underpinned by long-lasting freshness.

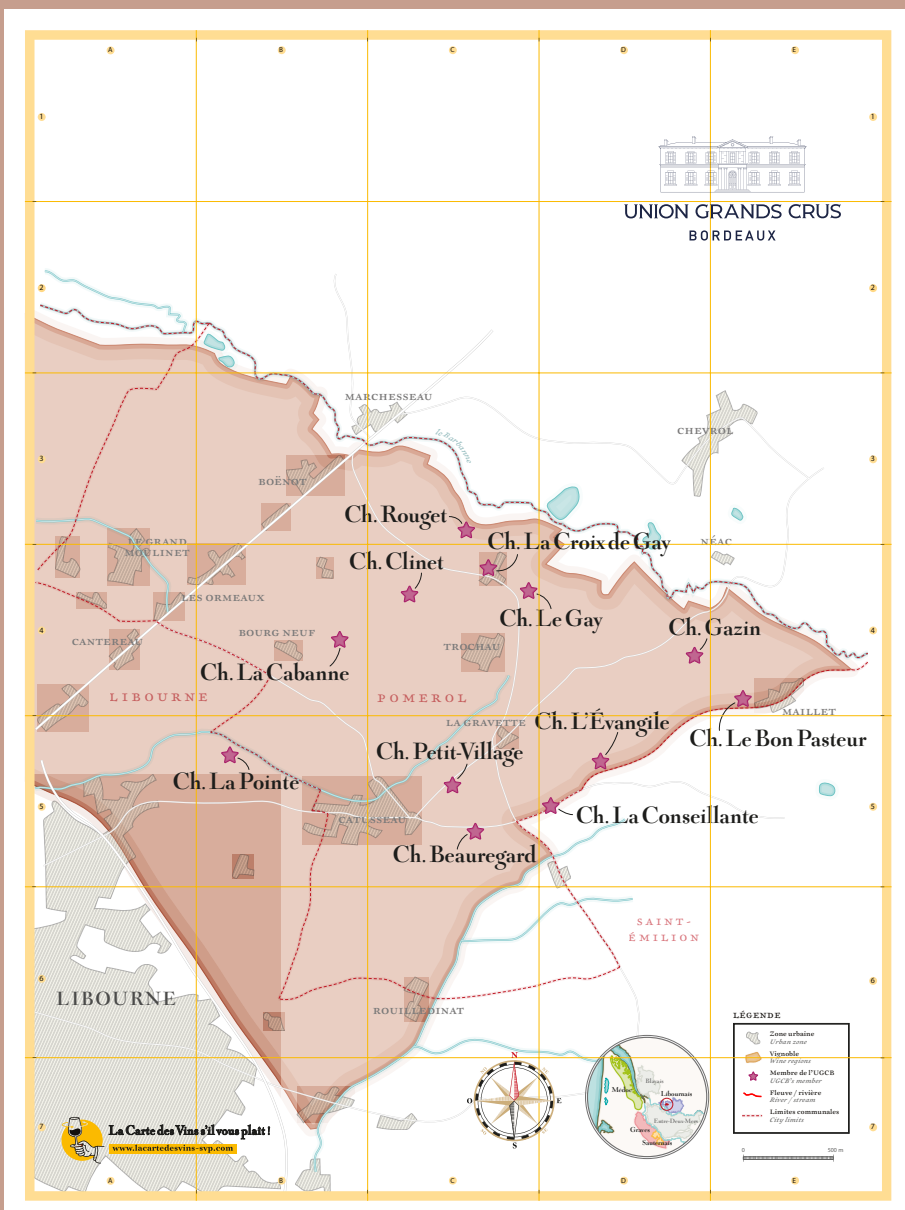

Pomerol

Located on the pilgrim road to Santiago de Compostela, the vineyards of Pomerol, which date back to Roman times, were developed by the Knights Templar. Although the Hundred Years' War brought only poverty and misery to the region, the vineyards once again thrived in the 15th and 16th centuries, and the reputation of their wines grew steadily.

In the 18th and 19th centuries, Pomerol's borders became more clearly defined, and the rarest wines were much sought-after by buyers from around the world.

The major crises of the 20th century were overcome thanks to the devotion and commitment of winegrowers. The reputation of wines from this appellation has increased from year to year. Pomerol produces only a small quantity of wine so, historically, négociants and importers had to go there to sample and buy wines of the most recent vintage as soon as these were blended. This tradition has been maintained at the major tasting organised by the Union des Grands Crus de Bordeaux.

The history of Château de Beauregard dates back to the 12th century. The Knights of Saint John of Jerusalem had a small manor house here which served as a stopover for pilgrims on the road to Santiago de Compostela.

This charming building has been managed by the Moulin and Cathiard families since 2014. These two long-standing friends aimed to give a new impetus to the château and its outstanding terroir by installing state-of-the-art vats and cellars, in operation since the 2015 vintage.

Beauregard wines are grown on a magnificent gravelly plateau and made from an unusual blend containing 35% Cabernet, which accounts for their exuberant fruity flavour, tremendous depth, and elegance.

Château Le Bon Pasteur

OWNER: SAS LE BON PASTEUR

Château Le Bon Pasteur was founded in the 1920s by the grandparents of Michel Rolland and purchased in 2013 by the Goldin Group in Hong Kong, chaired by devoted Bordeaux wine enthusiast SuTong Pan.

Since 1979, Michel Rolland had been innovating both in the vineyard and cellar, leading him to become a renowned winegrower and winemaker, and the most famous French consultant oenologist in the world. Alongside his wife, Dany, Michel Rolland strived to showcase the diversity of the estate's numerous plots and highlight the uniqueness and complexity of the terroir.

Today, Michel Rolland and Julien Viaud perpetuate this innovative spirit and pursuit of excellence as consultant oenologists at the estate. For over 10 years, the team has been managed by Benoît Prévot who has dedicated thirty years of his life to this estate.

Château Le Bon Pasteur and L'Étoile de Bon Pasteur, which have been produced for each vintage since 2013, are two unique examples of the Pomerol terroir.

Owned by the same family since 1952, Château La Cabanne is located in the heart of Pomerol. While vines have grown there since the 12th century, the name dates back to the 14th century, when serfs lived in cabanes, or huts.

A dynamic estate, Château La Cabanne regularly undergoes improvements, including the complete renovation of the vat room in 2011 following a fire which destroyed the 2008 vintage.

Winegrowing is carried out with the greatest respect for the terroir and environment (the estate is HEV-certified and under conversion to organic viticulture).

Located on the Pomerol plateau and its subsoil rich in blue clay, nicknamed the kingdom of Merlot, the vines produce powerful and well-balanced wines, with intense, complex fruity notes and delicate, silky tannins which add volume, concentration and richness.

The long aftertaste culminates in a touch of minerality.

Together with our consultant Thomas Duclos (Enoteam), we strive to produce elegant, classy wines from Merlot grapes (100% in certain vintages) on a marvellous Pomerol terroir.

Located in the heart of the Pomerol appellation, Clinet takes its name from the owner of this estate back in the Middle Ages.

Over time, Clinet became renowned for its excellent terroir. It featured in the first editions of Bordeaux and its Wines by Cocks and Féret, on the list of "Pomerol First Growths", and among the pioneering estates to be labelled a "Château".

Since 2003, the estate has been managed by Ronan Laborde who, alongside his wife, Monique, has made it his mission to reveal the soul of this magical place.

The terroir consists of gravelly clay soil, providing an ideal environment for growing local historic grape varieties such as Merlot and Cabernet Sauvignon.

Most vineyard operations are done by hand, while the grapes are transported by gravity flow to the underground cellar where gentle methods are used.

Château Clinet's first wine is characterised by elegant, intense, refined and complex aromas of red and blue fruits, garrigue and sweet spices.

The first recorded history of La Conseillante's name appears in the mid-18th century. It was bequeathed by an influential woman who owned the estate almost three hundred years ago: Catherine Conseillan.

The Nicolas family bought the château in 1871, and its size and configuration have remained the same ever since. Exemplifying the family's continued commitment to this great wine, the fifth generation is currently at the helm.

La Conseillante, located in the heart of the famous Pomerol plateau next to its famous neighbours, Pétrus and Cheval Blanc, boasts an outstanding terroir. The wine expresses the full potential of the terroir, gaining a well-deserved reputation for its power and elegance.

La Conseillante's silky tannin, aromatic complexity, and regularity year in, year out account for its loyal following around the world.

Château La Croix de Gay

OWNER: THE LEBRETON FAMILY

Château La Croix de Gay is one of the oldest estates in Pomerol. It was first acquired in 1477 by the ancestors of the Lebreton family, who named it after the historic monument of La Croix de Gay surrounding the château.

Château La Croix de Gay was ranked a Haut-Pomerol first growth in the 19th century and its sales price matched those of Pauillac first growths in the 1855 classification.

Noël and Geneviève Raynaud managed the estate from 1947 to 1997.

Since 1997, their daughter, Chantal Lebreton, assisted by her sons, has perpetuated the wine's unique style, which serves as a fine homage to the Pomerol terroir. It was described as a "veritable ferruginous nectar" by the 1929 edition of Cocks and Féret's "Bordeaux and its Wines", referring to the exceptional Pomerol terroir which accounts for the wine's violet and truffle aromas.

Due to a curious geological anomaly, a long strip of gravel was formed on the surface of the south-eastern part of the Pomerol plateau. Château L'Évangile is located on this rare terroir. The estate is bordered to the north by Château Pétrus, and is only separated from Cheval Blanc to the south (in the Saint-Émilion appellation) by a country road. The estate was developed in the 18th century by the Légglise family and renamed L'Évangile at the turn of the 19th century.

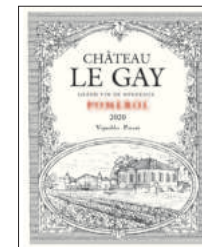

In 1862, L'Évangile was acquired by Paul Chaperon, and later inherited by the Ducasse family who owned the estate until 1990, when it was purchased by Domaines Barons de Rothschild (Lafite). Their first manifestation of their influence was a more rigorous selection for the first wine and the creation of a second wine, Blason de L'Évangile. Plans to renovate the vat room and cellar were completed in 2004. These efforts have been conducive to a decade of remarkable vintages. Managed by a young and rigorous technical team, Château L'Évangile wines stand out for their precision, freshness and balance, which serve as a testimony to their exceptional terroir.

Château Le Gay

Ideally situated on the Pomerol plateau, Château Le Gay used to be owned by the Robin sisters. The Parent family took over the 12-hectare estate in 2002.

Since then, the vineyard and cellar have been constantly evolving. 80% of the vineyard has been restructured with high-density planting (9,000 vines/hectare). Convinced that "vinification intégrale" fermentation enhances quality, Henri Parent began renovating the Château Le Gay cellar in 2014 (despite its recent renovation in 2003) in order to control the temperature of the 250 barrels during the maceration and fermentation processes.

In this never-ending quest for quality, each vine is known and recorded, the harvest is carried out in several passes, and barrel fermentation helps to separate each subplot in individual batches. The majority of the vineyard is planted with 90% Merlot, although the proportion of Cabernet Franc is expected to increase in the next few years.

Nothing is left to chance to ensure that Château Le Gay keeps moving forward.

Château Gazin formerly belonged to the Knights of Saint John of Jerusalem (Order of Malta) and is one of the largest estates in its appellation.

Louis Soualle, the great-grandfather of the present owners, acquired Château Gazin in 1918 and the estate continues to be carefully managed by his descendants.

The vineyard is planted in a single block on the upper part of the Pomerol plateau. Its subsoil is composed of blue clay, also known as smectite, providing coolness particularly suited to Merlot. This star grape variety in Pomerol adds finesse and complexity to the wines.

Château Gazin has always practised traditional viticulture that respects the environment: ploughing and green cover, manual harvesting and viticultural operations, protecting wildlife and biodiversity.

The wine is fermented without sulphur, and matured for 16 months in oak barrels before being bottled at the Château. 90% of production is exported worldwide, exclusively by Bordeaux merchants.

Château Gazin is a member of the Académie du vin de Bordeaux.

Château Petit-Village

OWNER: THE MOULIN FAMILY

Château Petit-Village benefits from a privileged geographical location, surrounded by the greatest Pomerol estates. It boasts 10.5 hectares of vines in a single enclosed triangular block delimited by three roads, which has remained unchanged since its creation in 1780. Its clay-gravel terroir is located on the highest point of the oldest terrace in the appellation.

The Moulin family, who were already the owners of Château Beauregard in the prestigious Pomerol appellation, purchased Château Petit-Village in early 2020.

The Moulin family's clear objective is to showcase Château Petit-Village as an iconic estate, which epitomises outstanding French craftsmanship and expertise and is on par with its high-profile neighbours.

Petit-Village's new image reveals a strong identity linked to its historical vineyard and prestigious past. The 2020 vintage already signals this renewal with a complex and incredibly pure bouquet, wonderful concentration, power and "calm strength" characteristic of fine wines from clay terroirs.

 Chateau La Pointe

Château La Pointe has undergone a real revival in recent years. In 2008, a detailed soil study helped to reclaim the nuances of the terroir, express the full potential of the vineyard and reconnect the estate with its prestigious past. The 2011 vintage epitomises the château's restored identity.

The entire team got involved to facilitate the development of the estate's cultural practices: vineyard operations adapted to the soil, green fertiliser, cover crops, preserving biodiversity, eco-grazing. These newfound natural methods have given a new lease of life to the soil, re-energised the vines and improved the wine's balance, as shown by the vintages from 2019 onwards.

Gentle extraction, carefully managed barrel ageing and respectful winemaking are the watchwords. Merlot – the predominant grape variety – and Cabernet Franc are always delicately balanced to enhance their freshness and elegance.

The first vines appeared at Rouget, formerly known as Rougier, in the early 12th century. Formerly belonging to the Knights of Saint John of Jerusalem (the Templars), Rouget was a regular crossing point for pilgrims. The current manor house was built at the end of the 18th century and remains one of Pomerol's most remarkable buildings.

The Labruyère family, who has produced wine since 1830 in Burgundy, brought a breath of fresh air to Château Rouget when they purchased it in 1992. Jean-Pierre and Édouard Labruyère planted vines exclusively on the upper Pomerol plateau in order to produce wines grown on the finest terroirs in the appellation. With over 18 hectares of vines planted with 80% Merlot and 20% Cabernet Franc grown using environmentally sustainable methods, Rouget aims to be an ambassador for the finest, classiest wines grown on Pomerol's most outstanding clay-gravel terroir.

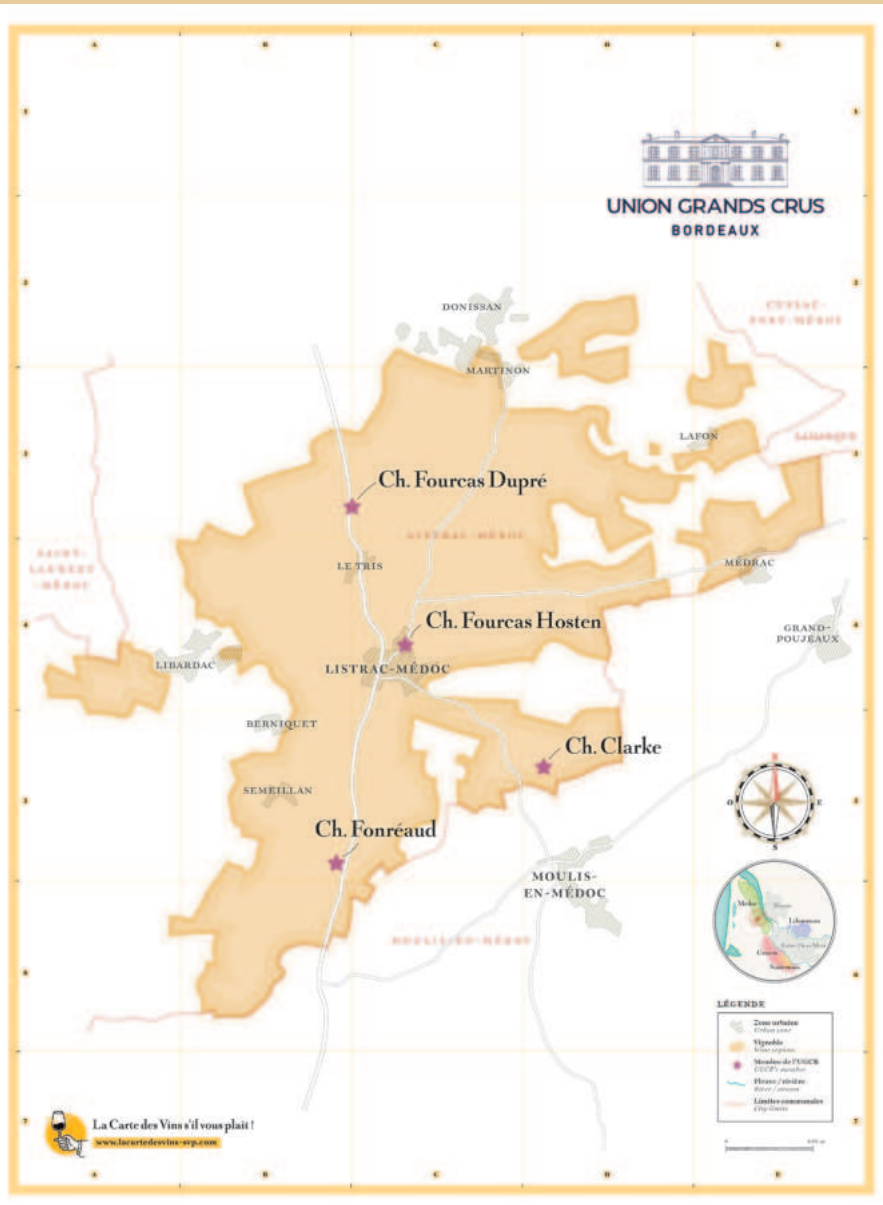

Lustrac-Médoc

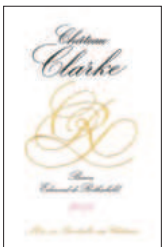

This wine-producing commune has been famous since the late 18th century. Le Producteur, a publication targeting the Bordeaux wine industry, noted as early as 1838 that vineyard owners in Lustrac were able to overcome numerous challenges to make a name for themselves thanks to the unique quality of their wines.

This quality was acknowledged in the early 20th century when the appellation contrôlée system was first established, although separate status was granted somewhat later than other Médoc communes, in June 1957, when Lustrac-Médoc was officially entitled to its own appellation. It thus became the youngest communal appellation in Bordeaux, three years after Margaux.

Château Clarke is a large estate named after the Irish family who purchased it in 1771. Two centuries later, the estate was acquired by Baron Edmond de Rothschild. Perpetuating his illustrious family's love of wine, the co-owner of Château Lafite-Rothschild, Baron Edmond, had always dreamed of owning a wine estate that he could make his own.

The estate was entirely restructured, renovated and modernised, making Clarke an icon in its appellation. Today, the vineyard consists of fifty-five hectares of clay-limestone rises planted predominantly with Merlot grapes (fairly rare in the Médoc).

Since 1997, Edmond's son, Benjamin de Rothschild and his wife Ariane have loved the good life and all things excellent, which is reflected in the meticulous care taken to produce their wines as well as the magnificent gardens surrounding the estate, featuring an incredibly diverse selection of plants and trees.

Château Fonréaud

OWNER: THE CHANFREAU FAMILY

Château Fonréaud is a family estate well-known for its historic vineyard and high-quality wines.

The estate is unusual in that its name comes from a legend and also because of its privileged location on the highest point in the Médoc.

Fonréaud was formerly called Font-réaux, meaning "royal fountain". Legend has it that in the 12th century, the King of England, probably Henry II Plantagenet, the husband of Eleanor of Aquitaine, was walking through the grounds in search of a spring in order to quench his thirst.

The estate is in an ideal location on the highest point of the Médoc. Thanks to a subtle blend of grape varieties, the terroir comes through beautifully in round wines with ripe tannin that develop wonderfully on the palate, along with fine structure and a velvety texture.

Special care is taken in the vineyard and cellar using environmentally sustainable methods to produce elegant, charming wines that reflect the spirit of the Chanfreau family.

Meanwhile, a vast replanting programme has been undertaken in the vineyard to perfectly match the grape varieties to the soil. Blending two complementary clay-limestone and Pyrenean gravel terroirs, the wines of Château Fourcas Hosten feature a perfect balance between crisp fruit and complex flavours with a velvety texture. Moulis-en-Medoc

The commune of Moulis, and thus the wine appellation, are named after the numerous moulins, or mills (both water and wind-powered) once found there. Moulis is a deformation of the words molinis and mola of Latin origin. While this name proves that grain was grown in the region, we also know that vines were cultivated here as far back as the Middle Ages by several vineyard owners and a large religious community. The winegrowing commune of Moulis is probably one of the oldest in the Médoc. Bearing witness to a prestigious past, the town also has one of the most beautiful Romanesque churches in the entire region.

The vineyards of Moulis and the reputation of its wines greatly developed during the 18th and 19th centuries, at the same time as other neighbouring communes.

Some people attribute the name to Lord Byron during a trip he made to France and others to Charles Baudelaire when he visited a friend who happened to live next to the château. What is certain is that the painter Odilon Redon, a neighbour of the estate and illustrator of "Paris Spleen", did suggest this lovely name to the estate owners in 1863.

For nearly 50 years, Chasse-Spleen has been owned by women - Jacques Merlaut's daughter, Bernadette Villars, starting in 1976, followed by her daughter, Claire, beginning in 1992, and now her second daughter, Céline, since 2000.

The vineyard is located just off the Route des Châteaux, halfway between Margaux and Saint-Julien. Chasse-Spleen is located in Moulis, the smallest appellation in the Médoc. The estate features an extraordinarily varied terroir consisting of complementary soil types ranging from pure Garonne and Pyrenean gravel to a mixture of clay and limestone.

Chasse-Spleen's wine reflects this diversity and the best of its appellation thanks to the fresh, mineral qualities of Cabernet Sauvignon grown on a thick layer of gravel, and the round, smoothness of Merlot planted on largely clay-limestone soil.

In 2017, Chasse-Spleen inaugurated a contemporary art centre and in 2023, Chasse-Spleen became a "mission-driven company".

The original château was built in 1875, surrounded by 1.5 hectares of vines. The architectural style is very Baroque, which was popular in the 19th century.

When they arrived at the estate in 1929, the Dourthe brothers, Roger and André, devoted their efforts to expanding the vineyards, attaining 20 hectares in 1967. Thanks to impetus from Philippe Dourthe, Roger's son, the estate expanded with a further 67 hectares of vines over a forty-year period. In 2007, Philippe Dourthe handed over management to his children: Caroline, Pascal, and Magali. A fully-qualified team respectful of the Dourthe winemaking philosophy is now in charge of the estate. Our wines are the result of a meticulous selection of grapes in the vineyard, as well as precision winemaking and ageing. They are appreciated throughout the world by professionals and wine enthusiasts alike.

As forerunners of wine tourism, we welcome visitors all year round to discover the Museum of the Arts and Crafts of the Vine and Wine as well as our state-of-the-art winemaking facilities.

In the Middle Ages, Poujeaux was a seigneurie owing allegiance to Latour Saint Mambert, the future Château Latour. Winegrowing at Poujeaux dates back to the 19th century. A period of prosperity was followed by a series of different owners and the vineyard was broken up in the early 20th century. Fortunately, it was reconsolidated by the Theil family who did much to give the wine a fine reputation.

Château Poujeaux was purchased by the Cuvelier family (who already owned Clos Fourtet, a Premier Grand Cru Classé in Saint-Emilion) in January 2008. This marked the beginning of a new chapter in Poujeaux's history. Philippe Cuvelier and his son, Matthieu, asked Stéphane Derenoncourt to advise them, while retaining the existing winemaking team. This is headed by Christophe Labenne, the grandson of the former owners.

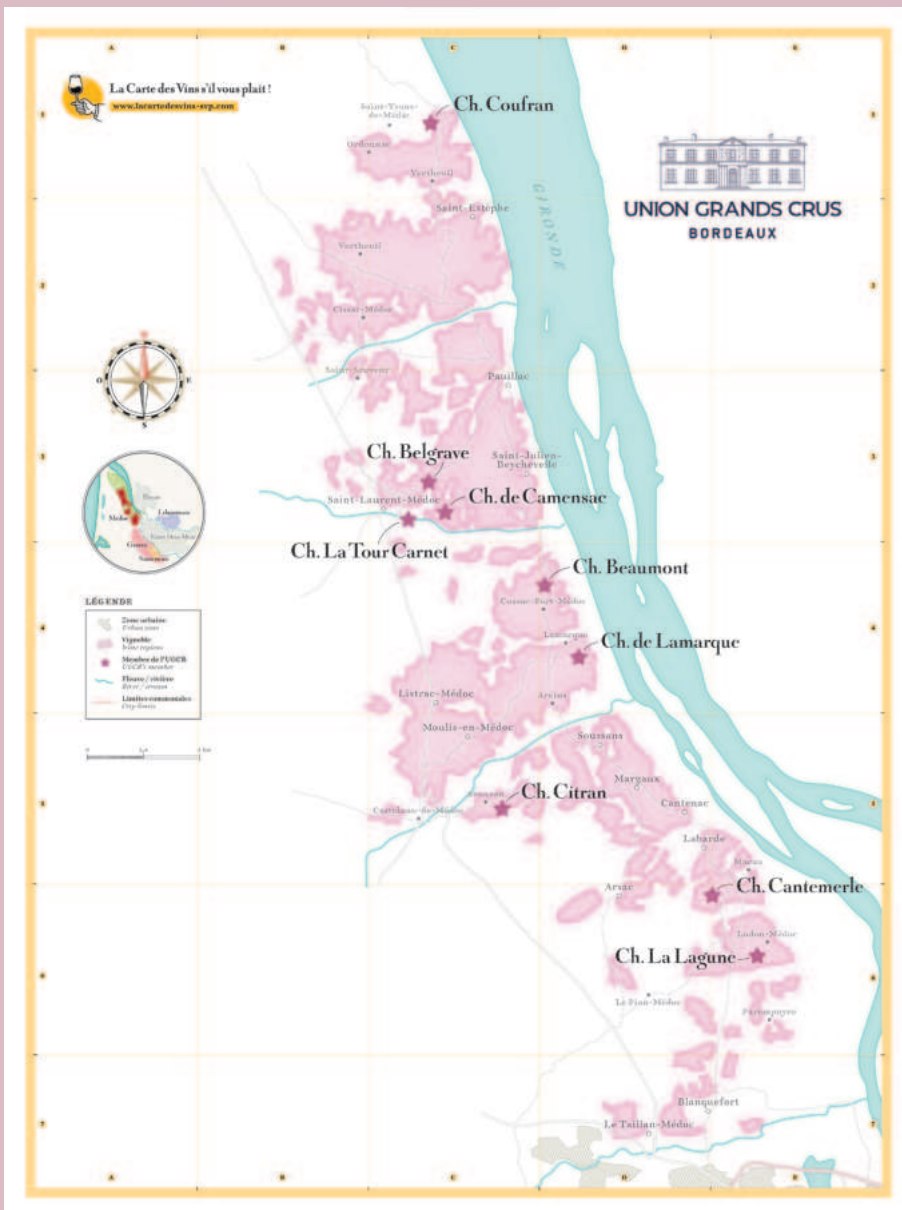

The vines are grown on a magnificent gravelly rise in the heart of the Médoc. While perpetuating the wine's generous yet delicate style, the current focus is on enhanced precision to allow Poujeaux to reach its ultimate potential.

Haut-Medoc

The Haut-Médoc stretches northwest of Bordeaux, from a stream called the Jalle de Blanquefort to the commune of Saint-Seurin-de-Cadourne. These boundaries had been defined for many years, and wines from this region have a long-established reputation. The part of the Médoc located closest to the city of Bordeaux, its vast terroir has produced fine wine since the 17th century. The owners of large estates made the most of their privileged location close to the port of Bordeaux and major transportation routes to export their wines all over the world. The northernmost vineyards were mostly created in the latter half of the 19th century.

 Château Beaumont

Winegrowing at Château Beaumont dates back to 1824. The present château, a pure jewel of Mansart-style architecture, was built in 1854. Its exotic history includes an unusual collection of characters: a Breton aristocrat, a Honduran minister, a Parisian industrialist, a lieutenant-colonel from Caracas, a Venezuelan senator, etc. – twelve different owners who ensured that Beaumont was enjoyed around the world.

Currently owned by Grands Millésimes de France, Château Beaumont produces an elegant, concentrated, well-balanced wine with a beautiful colour, extreme finesse, an exquisite bouquet, and a silky texture.

A vineyard committed to sustainable viticulture.

At Château Beaumont, we have been committed to an environmental and sustainable development initiative which also aims to improve our employees' quality of life and preserve biodiversity.

Château Belgrave

GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: GFV DU CHATEAU BELGRAVE

Château Belgrave, a former hunting lodge during the reign of Louis XV, was listed in the Médoc classification in 1815 under the name of Coutanceau. Bordeaux wine merchant Bruno Deveze renovated the vineyard and cellar and built the current remains around 1850. He renamed the estate "Belgrave" in honour of the high-quality deep gravel terroir, separated from the Saint-Julien appellation by a small stream.

Marcel Alibert, one of the estate's illustrious owners eager to protect and showcase Médoc wines, went on to become the co-founder of the Crus Classés Syndicate and later the Winegrower's Syndicate in the early 20th century.

Since Dourthe took over management of Château Belgrave in 1979, a great deal of work, passion, and energy have gone into producing wines that showcase the estate's rich history and the fine Médoc terroir.

Château de Camensac is located on the perimeter of the Médoc's great growths, bordering on the Saint-Julien appellation. The 75-hectare vineyard consists of Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot vines on slopes with deep gravel soil over a clay and hardpan subsoil.

Camensac is a very old estate that was included on Belleyrne's famous 18th-century map. In Médoc patois, "Camensac" means "on the water's way" and comes from the words "camens", meaning "path" or "way" and "ac", which means "water" in local dialect. In the 17th century, monks dug ditches along the bottom of the gravelly rises. These contributed to the quality of the terroir by draining off excess rainwater.

The Merlaut family acquired Camensac in time for the 2005 vintage and Céline Villars and Jean Merlaut are now in charge of the estate. The niece and uncle are also the respective owners of Chasse-Spleen and Gruaud-Larose. Éric Boissenot is the consulting oenologist.

OWNER: SMA GROUP

More than simply a terroir, Château Cantemerle is a territory. Its grounds and forests, which date back to the 13th century, are the original "green lung" of the estate.

The surrounding vineyards are planted on a great gravelly terroir and plot division has remained unchanged since the 1855 classification.

This unique terroir, where the vines are 40 years old on average, produces delicate wines with a rare aromatic complexity.

Enjoyable while young, they are rich, powerful and velvety, and renowned for their outstanding ageing potential.

The high standards and considerable involvement of our teams is also reflected in the estate's eco-friendly commitments. The HEV-certified estate has made it its mission to enhance its natural spaces in order to preserve its ecosystems and biodiversity.

Château Citran is one of the oldest estates in the Médoc. The Donissan de Citran family reigned over this former Médoc seigneurie from the 13th century until 1832. The current estate was rebuilt between 1862 and 1864 on the site of the medieval château. Nestled in verdant parkland and surrounded by moats, Château Citran is a listed historical monument.

In 1996, the Merlaut family, deeply involved in the Bordeaux wine industry, took over this magnificent estate. Today, Château Citran has 100 hectares of vines in the Haut-Médoc appellation, planted with grape varieties that express the full potential of the terroir, including Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, and Cabernet Franc.

The combination of traditional and state-of-the-art winemaking techniques in the vineyard and cellar result in an elegant and classy wine. Citran is renowned for its quality and finesse. The château's logo is a peacock, which can also be found on the estate's grounds.

Château Coufran was acquired in 1924 by Louis Mialhe. The Mialhe family were well-known brokers at the time, and their experience in this profession dates back to 1793. Marie-Cécile Vicaire and Éric Mialhe now manage the family estates, including Château Coufran and Château Verdignan.

Often called the "Pomerol of the Médoc" since it is made entirely from Merlot, Château Coufran benefits from an outstanding location overlooking the Gironde Estuary, with a mild microclimate and excellent sun exposure.

This large estate produces over 400,000 bottles of generous, concentrated wine that ages very well, alongside wines ready to drink now. Modern storage facilities house large quantities of wines from the previous ten vintages. This makes it possible to appreciate mature wines with an excellent quality/price ratio, and whose provenance one can be assured of.

Before it was transformed into a wine estate in 1587, Château La Lagune was nothing more than a village built around natural waterholes. The majestic manor house was built between 1730 and 1855. That year, the estate was ranked a third growth in the 1855 classification, a superb distinction which it owes to a first-rate terroir: one of the finest gravelly hilltops in the southern Médoc, bestowing its Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and Petit Verdot with a unique balance of power and elegance. The lively fruity notes add an elegant touch to the silkiness and depth of this wine. It is the perfect expression of its ecosystem, enhanced by Caroline Frey's biodynamic philosophy, and the fine-tuned plot-by-plot selection she lovingly refines thanks to a high-performance vat room and cellar. This Biodyvin-certified wine has stood the test of time, exuding real inner strength.

OWNER: THE GROMAND D'EVRY FAMILY

The seigneurie of Lamarque takes its name from "la marche" (meaning "the marches") since it was located on the border of the province of Guyenne.

The current fortress was built one thousand years ago by Garsion de Lamarque, the ancestor of Pierre-Gilles Gromand d'Evry, to defend the Médoc against Vikings invading from the Gironde Estuary. It was also the site of fierce assaults by the English during the Hundred Years' War...

Thalésie de Lamarque, granddaughter of Garsion, owned the estate in 1247. She left her mark on the château and its surrounding vineyard, which is part of the soul of the estate.

Her spirit continues to accompany the talented men and women who are caretakers of this superb terroir, and who give the wines of Lamarque their brilliance, freshness, sensuality, and long aftertaste.

771 years later, Thalésie d'Everlange, the granddaughter of Marie-Hélène and Pierre-Gilles, shares the same values.

Dating back to the 12th century, La Tour Carnet is a genuine medieval castle with a moat. The oldest château in the Médoc, it owes its name to the famous equerry Carnet, who fought valiantly beside Lord Jean de Foy. Carnet's courage and devotion were such that he ended up inheriting the estate. Éléonore, the sister of Michel de Montaigne, was one of several illustrious owners during the 16th century.

Following in her footsteps, the current owner, Bernard Magrez, has expended an enormous amount of time and energy in renovating the estate. His efforts have concerned the vineyard, cellars, and château.

Meticulous care is taken during pruning, leaf thinning, and green harvesting to reduce yields in the interest of quality. The grapes are handpicked into small crates and manually sorted before being transferred by gravity flow into wooden fermentation vats and then into barrel. These are just a few of the practices that contribute to the excellence of this estate, which is included in the 1855 classification.

Medoc

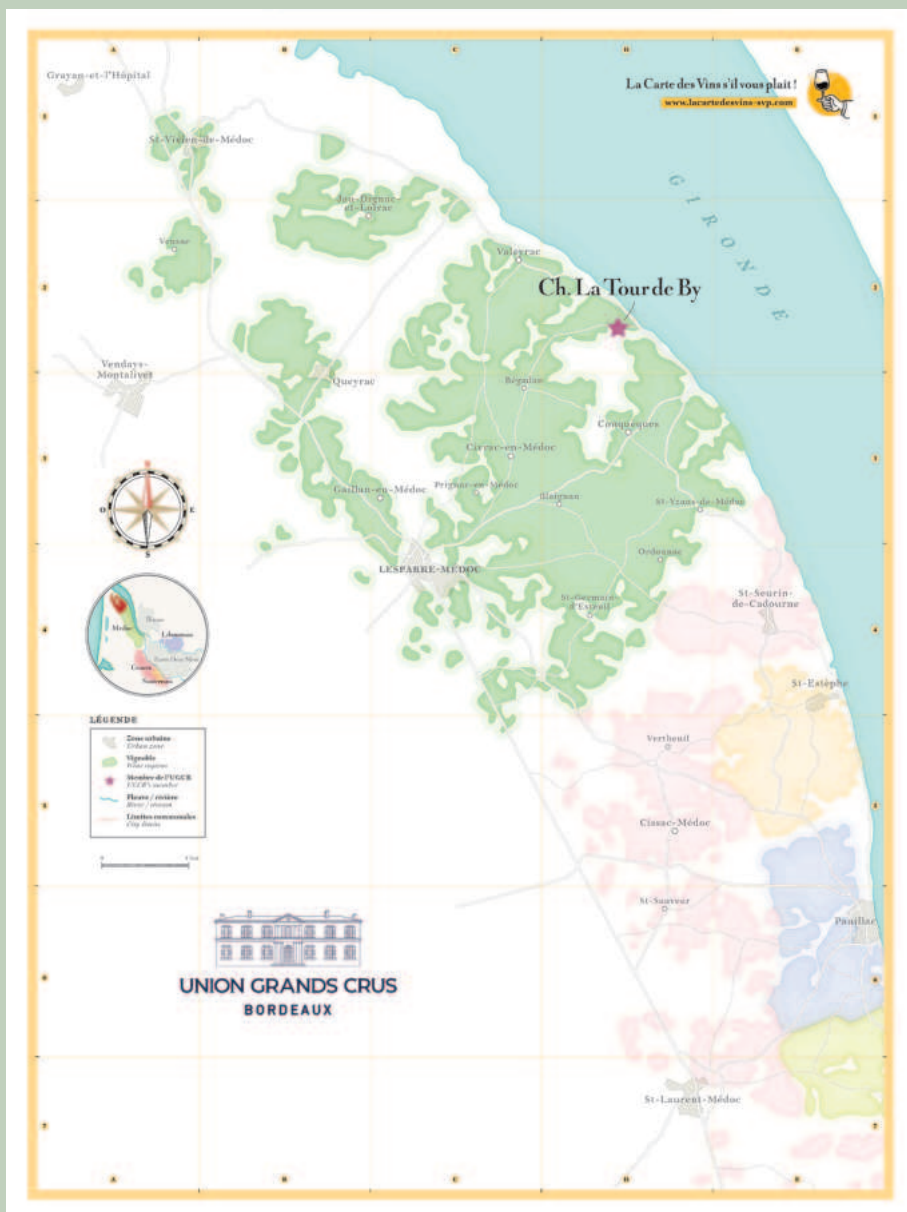

The Médoc is a huge triangular peninsula starting northwest of the city of Bordeaux, at a stream called the Jalle de Blanquefort, and going as far north as the Pointe de Grave. It is bordered by the Atlantic Ocean on the west and the Gironde Estuary on the east. Located off the northern tip of this peninsula, Cordouan, "the King of Lighthouses", reflects the long history of the Bordeaux wine trade and the necessity for merchant ships to have safe access up and down the Gironde Estuary.

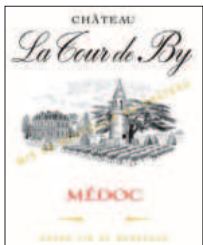

Wine from the Médoc appellation comes mainly from vineyards located in the northern part of the peninsula, bordering the estuary, on a strip of land 2 to 5 km. wide, and 20 km. long, starting from Ordonnac in the south and going as far north as Vensac. The western boundary is limited at the drainage divide by a pine forest which serves as a natural windbreak against ocean gales.

 Château La Tour de By @chateaulatourdeby

Vines have been grown at La Tour de By since the 16th century and records show that the château was acquired by Pierre Tizon, lord of the fiefdom of By, in 1599. The tower symbolising the estate is a former lighthouse built in the middle of the vines in 1825 to guide sailors navigating on the Gironde Estuary on foggy nights.

In 1965, Marc Pagès, an agricultural engineer from Tunisia, purchased this beautiful estate in the northern Médoc and was responsible for its restoration. He was assisted by Professor Emile Peynaud, whose advice contributed enormously to making the most of the remarkable terroir. Marc brought this Médoc estate up to its full potential during the four decades in which he managed it.

In 2005, his grandson, Frédéric Le Clerc followed his grandfather's winemaking philosophy combining quality, precision winemaking, and respect for traditional techniques.

Margaux

The name Margaux is magical and reflects a history of winemaking going back one thousand years. As with most vineyards close to the city of Bordeaux, wine production began during the Gallo-Roman period.

Records from the early 18th century refer to numerous winegrowing estates. While the château, whose name is eponymous with the appellation, already had a long history of selling wine, it was only in the late 18th century that other vineyard owners became aware of the value of their land and introduced the production and ageing methods that gave rise to the Margaux great growths.

It took more than a century after the famous 1855 classification for this large, complex region to put conflicts between communes behind it and for the rigorously delimited Margaux appellation to be recognised.

Since the 17th century, the vineyards of Château Angludet have been planted in a single block on a gravelly hilltop in the Margaux appellation, surrounded by forests and meadows and crossed by a stream. This natural protected landscape is perfectly suited to growing vines and producing fine wines.

The Sichel family, who have lived at the estate and produced wine since 1961, are keen on preserving its timeless heritage. Benjamin Sichel has managed the estate since 1989 and is dedicated to optimising the natural balance of the vines. He considers the vineyard as a natural, self-regulating ecosystem that the winegrower should simply support. In the early 2000s, he decided to convert the entire vineyard to biodynamic viticulture. The transformation of the grapes into wine must respect what happens in the vineyard, from harvesting by hand to concrete vats for fermenting the wine, to French oak barrels and terracotta amphorae.

Our aim is to make wines that resonate with tasters, which appeal to the senses and are an invitation to discussion.

Over three hundred years, the outstanding terroir of Château Brane-Cantenac has gained a legendary reputation.

In the 19th century, Baron Hector de Brane, nicknamed "Napoleon of the vines", developed the terroir and Château Brane-Cantenac become known as "the first of the second growths".

The wines of this château express their terroir composed of 72 hectares in the Margaux appellation. The vines are grown on deep gravel soil on the illustrious Brane plateau, where they benefit from excellent natural drainage. This plateau, known as "the heart of Brane", produces complex, brilliant, and classy wines.

Henri Lurton represents the fourth generation to follow in his ancestor's footsteps. Keen on innovation and the latest technology, Henri nevertheless remains faithful to the family's traditional values which form the intrinsic identity of Brane-Cantenac.  Château Kirwan - Grand Cru Classé 1855

 chateaukirwan

The estate owes its name to the Irishman Mark Kirwan, descending from a long line of merchants who arrived in Bordeaux in the 18th century.

In 1926, Château Kirwan came into the hands of the Schyler family. Settled in Bordeaux in 1739, they have managed the oldest family-run wine merchant house ever since. With the help of oenologist and agronomist Philippe Delfaut, appointed Managing Director in 2007, they launched a major investment programme.

Today, these efforts have paid off with precise, distinctive wines that faithfully reflect the terroir of Château Kirwan.

The estate is nestled in a green haven, with century-old trees, a fish pond and an Impressionist rose garden. Alongside its undeniable charm, the estate's grounds provide an ecosystem closely linked to winegrowing activities. All these assets help make Château Kirwan a leader in wine tourism.

Château Labégorce

OWNER: THE PERRODO FAMILY,
REPRESENTED BY NATHALIE PERRODO SAMANI

From the thorn bushes suggested by the etymology of "gorsse" to the splendid vineyards of Labégorce today, generations of lords and farmers have succeeded one another since 1332 to shape the identity of Château Labégorce.

Hubert Perrodo instantly fell in love with the estate in 1989, following in the footsteps of those who have cherished this land over the centuries. The encounter of this historic Margaux terroir with the ideals of a visionary patriarch signalled a new chapter in the history of Labégorce, culminating in the bold challenge of reunifying the estate, which was once divided into three (Labégorce Margaux, Labégorce Zédé and L'abbé Gorsse de Gorsse).

Labégorce evokes the heart and soul of this place, where great wines have been made for centuries. A brilliantly fruity wine with great finesse, a wine that brings people together, a place where people care for each other.

Today, on behalf of her family, Nathalie Perrodo Samani is responsible for looking after Château Labégorce, as well as the classified great growth Châteaux Marquis d'Alesme Becker, and La Tour de Mons, both historic Margaux growths.

 Château Lascombes

Located in the Margaux appellation, Château Lascombes is a second growth in the 1855 classification whose origins date back to 1681, when the first vines were planted.

Combining power, elegance and soft tannins, Château Lascombes offers great complexity, with excellent ageing potential. The wine produced at the estate was classified a second growth along with fifteen others during the 1855 official classification. Spanning approximately 100 hectares, the estate's vineyards are home to some of the most sought-after plots in the Margaux appellation, composed of a unique patchwork of different types of soils.

The Lawrences, owners of the iconic Heitz Cellar in the Napa Valley, and Carlton McCoy, Associate Director and Master Sommelier, have owned Château Lascombes since 2022.

Château Malescot Saint-Exupéry

GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: JEAN-LUC ZUGER

Château Malescot St-Exupéry owes its name to two former owners: Simon Malescot, a royal councillor to the Bordeaux parliament, who acquired the estate in 1697, and Count Jean-Baptiste de Saint-Exupéry, who owned it from 1827 to 1853.

Paul Zuger and his son Roger purchased the chateau, located in the middle of the town of Margaux, in June 1955. After more than thirty years of unstinting efforts, Malescot St-Exupéry's coat of arms has never been truer: Semper Ad Altum (or "always higher"). The 45-hectare estate has 28 hectares of vines on a fine terroir that "overlooks the river" - indicative of the best vineyard sites according to an old local saying.

Connoisseurs greatly appreciate the outstanding bouquet of this great growth, whose fruitiness and body go together beautifully with meat dishes and cheeses.

In 1762, the Marquis de Terme gave his name to the wine estate that was part of his wife's dowry. In 1787, Thomas Jefferson, future president of the United States, put this wine on the map, ranking it as one of his favourites. In the heart of the Médoc Regional Natural Park in the prestigious Margaux appellation on Bordeaux's Left Bank lies a unique landscape combining a bucolic setting, the hustle and bustle of a wine estate and the status of a great growth in the 1855 classification. The Sénéclauze family, who have owned the château since 1935, have continued to develop it from one generation to the next. This sense of permanence and longevity runs in the family genes, with the pervasive desire to transmit heritage.

Since being appointed Managing Director, Ludovic David has given the estate a new, forward-looking impetus by improving the quality and consistency of the wines, strengthening their position on the Bordeaux marketplace and developing wine tourism activities, with the opening of a restaurant at the estate in 2021, [Au] Marquis de Terme, in partnership with Gregory Coutanceau.

Château Monbrison

OWNER: LAURENT VONDERHEYDEN

Ideally located in the heart of the Margaux appellation, Château Monbrison is a family estate owned by the Davis-Vonderheyden family for nearly a century.

It benefits from an outstanding location, nestled at the end of a beautiful path lined with umbrella pines, in a century-old park. Situated on the highest plateaux in the Margaux appellation, the estate is surrounded on all sides by 12.5 hectares of vines, rooted in fine, deep gravel.

The estate's philosophy revolves around its ongoing quest to preserve the intrinsic characteristics of the terroir. The golden rule lies in combining tradition and modernity.

Monbrison wines are quintessentially aromatic, fruity, and elegant. The estate's world-famous reputation continues to attract new, loyal enthusiasts.

In January 2018, Laurent Vonderheyden's youngest daughter, Alix, joined her father to manage Château Monbrison and shape its destiny.

 PrieureLichine

Founded in the 12th century by monks from Vertheuil Abbey, the prieuré (or “priory”) of Cantenac has produced well-reputed wines from the very beginning.

In 1951, Alexis Lichine, nicknamed “the Pope of Wine”, took over the estate and added his name two years later. Thanks to his patient determination, he was able to add new vineyard plots, modernise the cellars, and renovate the monks’ former living quarters. Château Prieuré-Lichine’s fate was linked to that of the Lichine family for half a century.

Now owned by the Ballande group, the château has entered a dynamic new phase of its history, thanks to the purchase of 8 additional hectares in 2012 and the installation of a new vat.

A new approach to managing far-flung vineyard plots has turned this diversity into a decided advantage, enabling Prieuré-Lichine to express the full complexity of its terroir thanks to an experienced and devoted winemaking team.

Château Rauzan-Gassies

GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: THE QUIE FAMILY

Château Rauzan-Gassies is a second growth in the 1855 classification. Located in the Margaux appellation, it owes its name to Chevalier de Rauzan, who transformed the “Maison Noble de Gassies” into a famous wine estate in the 17th century. Already planted with vines when it was ranked in the 1855 classification, the estate’s 30-hectare vineyard consists of a patchwork of soils on the appellation’s two most renowned rises.

Monsieur Paul Quié, a wine lover and merchant in Paris was greatly attracted by this outstanding terroir and acquired the château in 1946. Nowadays, his grandchildren, twins Anne-Françoise and Jean-Philippe, perpetuate the traditions of this famous estate, as the guardians and ambassadors of the family’s values.

Boasting a streamlined design and bathed in light, Château Rauzan-Ségla blends into the landscape of the Gironde Estuary, at the gateway to the village of Margaux. Its cosy interior is filled with stories, high-quality fabrics and materials. Outside, the terraces of the Médoc peninsula are perfectly suited to the château's grape varieties. Composed of deep gravel and clay, fine gravel and clay-limestone soils, Rauzan's patchwork of terroirs are just waiting to be revealed. Man observes the vineyards and carefully tends to the vines to uncover the ultimate jewel, the blend of the year. The wines are the epitome of timeless charm. Seemingly delicate, they go on to reveal inner depth and are the subtle combination of finesse and smoothness.

Château Rauzan-Ségla has belonged to the Chanel group since 1994. Currently under conversion to organic viticulture, it will produce its first certified vintage in 2024.

 Château du Tertre

 Château du Tertre

 Château du Tertre -
Grand Cru Classé Margaux

Located on one of the highest and most beautiful gravelly rises in the Margaux appellation, Château du Tertre was created in the 18th century by an important Irish merchant, Pierre Mitchell, who fell in love with the Bordeaux region and its wines. The founder of the first glassworks in Bordeaux, this refined, innovative man realised one of his fondest dreams by establishing his own fine wine estate. Other famous families followed in his footsteps, including the Koenigswarters and rich bankers close to Emperor Napoleon III. The quality of the wine was such that it was included among the Margaux great growths in the 1855 classification.

Eric Albada Jelgersma acquired the estate in 1997 and, thanks to major investments and a clever mix between tradition and innovation, he restored Château du Tertre to its former glory.

In March 2021, the Helfrich family opened a new chapter in Château du Tertre's history and have been devoted to ensuring the longevity of this magnificent estate ever since.

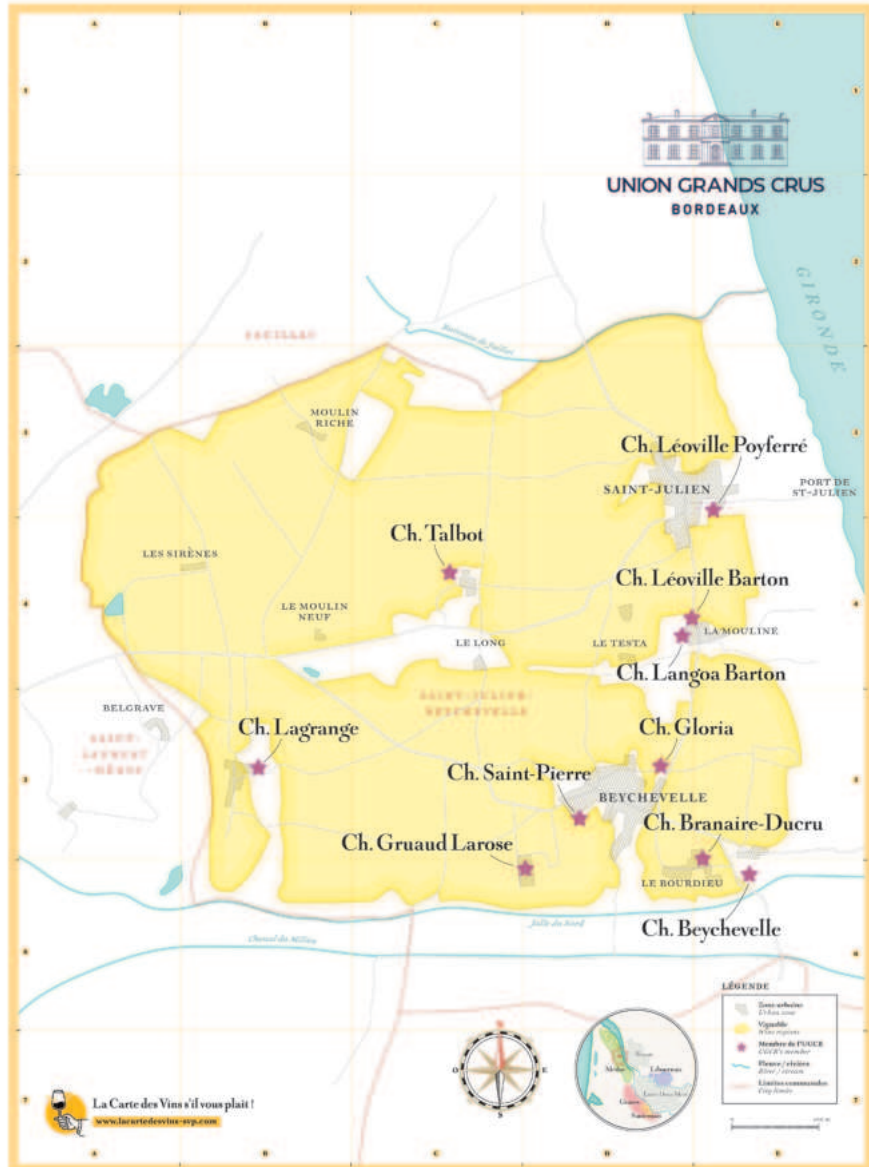

Saint-Julien

The parish of Saint-Julien dates back to the 7th century. Originally named Saint-Julien-de-Reignac, the town became known as Saint-Julien-Beychevelle in the early 20th century, combining the name of the small port and that of the hamlet famous for its fine wines.

Starting in the 17th century, aristocrats and other land owners made the most of the winegrowing potential of their outstanding terroir. They were responsible for creating the great estates included in the 1855 classification.

Beychevelle1855

The spirit of Château Beychevelle was forged over three centuries.

During the reign of Henri III, the estate was the fief of the Dukes of Épernon, including the first of that name, Jean-Louis Nogaret de La Valette, an admiral in the French navy. Derived from the Old French "Baisse-Voile", meaning "lowered sails", Beychevelle takes its name from a legend that tells how ships passing in front of his estate lowered their sails as a sign of allegiance to this powerful man. This is reflected in the château's emblem, which depicts a ship with a griffin (the guardian of Dionysus' wines in Greek mythology) on the prow.

Built in the 17th century and reconstructed by Marquis de Brassier in 1757, the château was restored to its original splendour in the late 20th century.

The elegance of Beychevelle's architecture is reflected in its refined, well-balanced wine served at prestigious tables around the world.

The estate's owners are also very respectful of the environment and the estate has obtained integrated vineyard management certification.

Château Branaire-Ducru

GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: THE MAROTEAUX FAMILY

The first person to own the estate in 1680, Jean-Baptiste Braneyre was well aware of the superb winegrowing potential of its gravelly soil located a stone's throw from the Gironde Estuary. The 1855 classification was later to confirm the quality of the terroir.

In 1988, the family group asked Patrick Maroteaux, to write a new page in the history of this great growth. He consequently set out to make quality an absolute priority and do everything possible to express Branaire-Ducru's intrinsic personality and complexity. Consisting primarily of Cabernet Sauvignon, the estate's wines are characterised by their pure, fruity aromas and freshness. Branaire-Ducru is invariably elegant and a quintessential Saint-Julien in every vintage.

Founded in 1725 by an abbot, Father Gruaud, then handed over to his nephew Chevalier de Larose, Château Gruaud Larose fully deserves its classified great growth status in the Saint-Julien appellation. The estate’s 82 hectares of vines are planted on a single block atop a rise composed of Garonne gravel from the Quaternary Period, and have remained unchanged since the estate’s ranking in the 1855 classification.

After taking over Château Gruaud Larose in 1997, the Merlaut family undertook a profound restructuring of the vineyards and returned the Cabernet Sauvignon grape variety to its former glory. Restoring balance in the ecosystem is a key priority that allows the terroir to fully express itself. Biodiversity is thus a core concern and dedicated teams manage the vineyard using agronomic methods that fully respect the environment and biodynamic principles.

The estate has been organically certified since August 2022.

Château Gruaud Larose wines are renowned for their finesse and elegance, reflecting the richness of the estate’s great terroir. Château Gruaud Larose is undoubtedly the “the Wine of Kings and the King of Wines”.

Château Lagrange's reputation as a winegrowing estate emerged in the 17th century. Lagrange was ranked a third growth in the 1855 classification thanks to the passion and hard work of Count Dûchatel, who owned the chateau from 1842 to 1874. The estate stretches over 280 hectares, 120 of which are dedicated to winegrowing.

In 1983, the Suntory group, a leading Japanese wine and spirits firm, acquired Lagrange and invested heavily in a spectacular renovation. Priority was given to the vineyard, followed by modernising the vat room and cellars. Efforts undertaken since the 1980s have helped produce powerful, elegant wines characteristic of the Saint-Julien appellation.

Today, a new duo, Matthieu Bordes and Rakusa Sakurai, continue the quest for excellence, working to produce more eco-friendly wines that limit the estate's carbon footprint.

In 1826, Hugh Barton, owner of Château Langoa Barton, purchased part of the vineyards of the Léoville estate, which was then renamed "Léoville Barton". The quality of the estate's wines was acknowledged in the famous 1855 classification, when it was listed as a second growth. The estate is still owned by the Barton family who believe very much in the importance of the terroir. Together, they produce signature Saint-Julien wines with superb finesse, balance, and long-lasting freshness.

Twice in the history of the Bartons, one of the family members has been forced to flee from France: in 1793 Hugh returned to Ireland during the French Revolution, and later, Ronald had to temporarily abandon the château in 1940. He returned in 1945 to produce a legendary vintage.

Today, Lilian Barton Sartorius represents the ninth generation of Bordeaux winegrowers and the oldest family to still own a great growth estate.

Château Léoville Poyferré

GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: THE CUVELIER FAMILY

The history of the estate, located in the northern part of the Saint-Julien appellation, dates back to 1638, when the first vines were planted on a gravelly hilltop. Following numerous divisions and successions, Château Léoville Poyferré came into existence in 1840 and was ranked a second great growth in the 1855 Médoc classification.

Originally from the Lille region, the Cuvelier family has worked in the wine industry for over 200 years.

Following their first steps as wine merchants, it took another century of expertise before they would acquire estates.

Won over by the Médoc after purchasing Château le Crock in 1903, the family then turned towards the prestigious Saint-Julien appellation, acquiring Châteaux Léoville Poyferré and Moulin Riche in 1920.

Today, a tight-knit team uses its expertise to shape the identity of Léoville Poyferré and produce irresistibly voluptuous wines with spellbinding charm.

This 17th-century fourth great growth was gradually divided over several generations and inheritances. Then in 1982, thanks to the tenacious willpower and good fortune of Henri Martin, the vineyard was restored to its former glory of 1855, the famous classification year, which allowed it to become quite simply superb. The perfect representation of great growths in the Saint-Julien appellation, it is a dream all by itself.

Château Talbot

GRAND CRU CLASSÉ EN 1855

OWNER: THE BIGNON-CORDIER FAMILY

This imposing estate owes its name to Connétable Talbot, the English General and Governor of the province of Guyenne who was defeated at the famous Battle of Castillon in 1453.

In an ideal location bordering the Gironde Estuary, Talbot's vines are grown on some of the region's most prized gravelly rises renowned for producing great wines. Talbot is one of the oldest estates in the Médoc. It has been in the hands of experienced managers for centuries, and always shown to be worthy of its inclusion in the 1855 classification.

Owners of Talbot since 1918, the Cordier family have perpetuated their predecessors' commitment to quality. At Talbot, wine is very much past, present, and future, whereby traditional techniques are combined with technical innovations.

Thanks to an alliance between mankind and nature, as well as generations of experience, this outstanding terroir produces wines which vary depending on the vintage, but are always well-balanced and complex.

Pauillac

Pauillac was home to a busy port from the dawn of history until the 21st century thanks to its privileged location halfway between the mouth of the Gironde Estuary and the city of Bordeaux. Many ships stopped over in Pauillac before going upriver to Bordeaux or else out to sea.

Winegrowing in Pauillac dates back to the Late Middle Ages and developed significantly over the centuries. However, it was the creation of large estates from the early 17th century to the late 19th century that gave Pauillac the importance it has today. It is also the commune with the greatest number of first growths in the 1855 classification.

 Chateau Batailley

 chateaubatailley

Château Batailley, listed in the 1855 classification, is one of the jewels of the Castéja family and the Borie-Manoux firm.

The name of this estate comes from the word "bataille", meaning "battle", in memory of a skirmish that took place in the vines in 1453 during the Hundred Years' War. At this time, French troops retook possession of Château Latour, which was then occupied by the English, marking the end of British troops in the Médoc.

Shaped by its rich history, the estate as we know it today was gradually transformed from the 16th to the 18th centuries. The chateau grounds were designed in the 19th century by Barillet-Deschamps, a famous landscape artist during the reign of Napoléon III.

This beautiful estate is planted with all Médoc grape varieties on a pure gravel terroir, producing wines characteristic of a classic Pauillac, with a deep ruby-red colour, excellent structure, and pronounced blackcurrant overtones.

 Château Croizet-Bages

 chateau_croizetbages

Château Croizet-Bages takes its name from the Croizet brothers, who created the estate in the 17th century in the heart of the famous hamlet of Bages in Pauillac. In 1855, it was ranked a fifth growth in the imperial classification. The wine again received special recognition at the 1878 and 1889 Universal Exhibitions, reflected in the gold medals featured on the label.

Paul Quié clearly saw the potential of this great growth when he acquired it in 1942. His grandchildren, Anne-Françoise and Jean-Philippe now run the estate and have brought it into the modern era by fine-tuning each stage in the winemaking process.

Château Croizet-Bages is a generous, opulent and expressive wine with a very powerful bouquet reminiscent of black fruit, spices, and cedar, underpinned by a fine tannic texture.

Château d'Armailhac

GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: BARONNE PHILIPPINE DE ROTHSCHILD G.F.A.

A great growth in the 1855 classification, Château d'Armailhac adjoins Château Mouton Rothschild to the north and benefits from south-facing sun exposure. The estate's 76 hectares of vines have an average age of 40 years and stretch across three rises, thus benefiting from all the typical characteristics of the Pauillac appellation.

Château d'Armailhac owes its name to the Armailhac family who purchased it in 1660. In 1933, Baron Philippe de Rothschild (1902-1988) acquired the estate before later handing it over to his daughter, Baroness Philippine de Rothschild (1933-2014). Today, Baroness Philippine's three children, Camille and Philippe Sereys de Rothschild and Julien de Beaumarchais de Rothschild, maintain their ancestors' legacy.

Château d'Armailhac is a fine wine characteristic of the Pauillac appellation, with an unwavering elegant classicism and a solid and refined tannic structure.

Located next to Château Lafite Rothschild, Château Duhart-Milon was acquired by Domaines Barons de Rothschild (Lafite) in 1962. According to oral tradition, "Sieur Duhart" was the name of a corsair under Louis XV who settled in Pauillac when he retired. The corsair's house in the port of Pauillac inspired the label for Duhart-Milon wines. In the early 18th century, Duhart-Milon wines provided an additional income for the "Lord of Lafite" and were classified as Château Lafite's "second wine", demonstrating the high quality of the terroir. The 1855 classification elevated Duhart-Milon to classified great growth status in Pauillac.

The 75-hectare vineyard in the Pauillac appellation is planted with 70% Cabernet Sauvignon and 30% Merlot.

It stretches out over the west side of Château Lafite Rothschild on the Milon hillside, which runs along the Carruades de Lafite plateau. Each vintage is aged in oak barrels from the Tonnellerie des Domaines coooperage. Barrel ageing lasts 10 to 18 months, depending on the vintage.

Château Grand-Puy owes its name to its location on a puy (hill) and the family who owned it around the time the 1855 classification was established.

The estate's terroir, consisting of a single block of vines overlooking the town of Pauillac, benefits from an outstanding hilly terrain and a favourable microclimate influenced by the nearby estuary.

The château reigns over a sea of vines. Included in the famous 1855 classification, Grand-Puy-Lacoste has played an important role in the history of Bordeaux wine since the early 16th century.

Several families have since taken over direction of the estate, including the Lacostes and Raymond Dupins who handed it over to the Borie family in 1978.

François-Xavier Borie, estate owner and manager, continues to renovate the facilities to help better express the quality and typical characteristics of its outstanding terroir.

The resulting wines have powerful, velvety tannins, reminiscent of the Pauillac appellation.

Château Haut-Batailley, symbolised by the Tour l'Aspic, stands at the gateway to the Pauillac vineyards. The estate owes its name to the hamlet of Batailley where a battle of the Hundred Years' War took place in the 15th century.

In 2017, the Cazes family purchased the estate, signalling the start of a new chapter. At the time, only 22 out of the 40 or so hectares of vines sitting atop deep Garonne gravel soil were under production.

As of 2018, following an in-depth soil study, 19 hectares classified in the Pauillac appellation have been replanted on soil that has been well-rested for many years.

Château Haut-Batailley is an elegant, harmonious wine with a fine tannic structure that develops complexity and depth with age.

Located in Pauillac, the Lynch-Bages vineyard (1855 Grand Cru Classé), overlooks the Gironde Estuary and stretches over a beautiful gravelly hilltop. Formerly owned by the illustrious Lynch family, of Irish descent, the estate was acquired by Jean-Charles Cazès in 1939.

Housed in a building dating from the end of the 16th century, the historic vat room was built in the 1850s. It is still present today, miraculously intact and carefully preserved. Used until 1976, it paints a complete picture of the winemaking techniques of the period.

In 2017, the Cazès family embarked on a new chapter in the history and life of the property with the renovation of their winemaking facilities. While in-depth analyses of the soils and vineyard have been conducted for several years, the renovation project, entrusted to the American architect Chien Chung Pei, is a natural part of this quest for excellence.

Marking four centuries of history and the culmination of four years' hard work, the 2020 vintage, the first created in the renovated cellars, opened a new chapter in the life of the estate.

Lynch-Moussas is a historic estate purchased by the Lynch family and formerly located on three large plateaux: Madrac, Moussas, and Bages. In the 19th century, the estate was divided into two: Bages Jurine (today Lynch-Bages) and Lynch-Moussas (named after the plateau where many of the vines are grown).

Pauillac land owners since the 17th century, the Castéja family acquired Château Lynch-Moussas in the early 20th century. In 1970, Emile Castéja inherited the estate and took over management. He immediately set about developing it further. His son, Philippe Castéja, has managed this and all the family's other estates since 2001.

Château Pichon Baron is a second growth in the 1855 classification and a historic Bordeaux estate.

The great terroir, located on a slope at the Pichon Baron estate, is a historic plot that has made wine since 1694. It is dedicated to producing the estate's first wine, constituting the majority of the blend.

The grapes used to produce Château Pichon Baron wines are meticulously selected in the vineyard and cellar. The unique terroir finds its purest expression in the wine's long aftertaste, power and perfect balance between finesse and elegance.

Built in 1851, the château features slender turrets reflected in a water mirror and benefits from breathtaking views over the Gironde Estuary. Our main priorities include organising various events and opening up the estate to wine enthusiasts from around the world.

Despite its long, rich history, only four families have owned the emblematic Pichon Comtesse estate.

Virginie de Pichon Longueville Comtesse de Lalande was a remarkable figure. A pioneer in what was once a male-dominated wine industry, she worked hard from the 1850s onwards to bolster the reputation of the estate's wine and also built the château that would bear her name.

Since 2007, the Louis Roederer family-run Champagne House has injected an ambitious, innovative dynamic into the estate.

From restructuring the vineyards to fully converting the estate to organic and biodynamic methods and installing state-of-the-art winemaking facilities, every effort has been made to help the Pichon Comtesse terroir reveal its full potential and produce the finest Pauillac wines, combining elegance, balance, power and finesse.

Saint-Estephe

Saint-Estèphe is the northernmost appellation in the Haut-Médoc. It benefits from an outstanding location along the Gironde Estuary, which can be seen from most of the commune's gravelly rises.

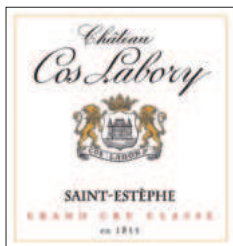

The first known inhabitants date back to the Bronze Age, and vines were planted here during the Roman occupation at the beginning of the Common Era.

The 17th, 18th and 19th centuries saw the development of great growth wines known as "grands crus", which, as in the other famous communal appellations in the Médoc and aided by the Bordeaux négociants who aged and sold the wines, contributed greatly to the reputation of Saint-Estèphe around the world.

Michel Reybier and his family marked a new chapter in the history of Château Cos Labory, a fifth growth in the 1855 classification, located in the Saint-Estèphe appellation.

Their desire to preserve the estate's heritage pays tribute to the work of Louis Gaspard d'Estournel, who acquired the estate in 1847.

Located on a deep gravel plateau on Le Cos ("stony hill") composed of clay soil on a limestone bedrock, Cos Labory benefits from the proximity of the Gironde Estuary and the influence of the Atlantic Ocean, which moderates extreme temperatures.

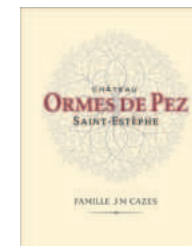

The 35 hectares of vines have an average age of 38. Half of them consist of Cabernet Sauvignon, a third of Merlot and a small percentage of Cabernet Franc and Petit Verdot.

Building on these assets, Michel Reybier "is dedicated to perpetuating the independence of the estate and steering it towards excellence, driven by the great Saint-Estèphe terroir."

SAINT-ESTÈPHE

Château Ormes De Pez

OWNER: THE CAZES FAMILY

Château Ormes de Pez dates back to the mid-18th century. Located on the edge of the hamlet of Pez, west of Saint-Estèphe, the estate owes its name to a magnificent group of elm trees. Alongside Château Lynch-Bages, Château Ormes de Pez is the second estate to be acquired by Jean-Charles Cazes in the late 1930s.

In the past ten years, significant restructuring work has been undertaken in the vineyards to better adapt the vines to the type of soil. New grape varieties have been planted in the vineyards in order to achieve even and optimum ripeness on each plot.

An authentic expression of its terroir, Château Ormes de Pez is harmonious, spicy and elegant. It is a full-bodied wine with powerful tannins and a smooth finish.

Château de Pez

Château de Pez is one of the oldest wine estates in the appellation, dating back to 1452. Initially a hunting lodge, Domaine de Pez established itself as a winegrowing estate over time. In the 18th century, the estate underwent an architectural transformation to become a château.

In 1995, the Louis Roederer Champagne House took over the estate and carried out a major renovation project in the vineyards and cellar. 2018 marked a new beginning, with the installation of state-of-the-art stainless-steel vats to fine-tune winemaking on a plot-by-plot basis.

Located north of the town of Saint-Estèphe, the vineyard consists of 42 hectares of vines on gravelly soil atop a clay-limestone bedrock, overlooking the Gironde Estuary. The wines of Château de Pez are round, classy, and elegant with a beautiful tannic structure.

They reveal themselves over time thanks to their excellent ageing potential.

Château Phélan Ségur

OWNER: PHILIPPE VAN DE VYVERE

Located in the heart of the village of Saint-Estèphe, Château Phélan Ségur overlooks the Gironde Estuary. Founded in the early 19th century by Irishman Bernard O'Phelan, the estate has belonged to the Belgian family of Philippe Van de Vyvere since 2018.

A haven for biodiversity, the estate is home to 114 hectares of grounds, forests, prairies and ponds and 70 hectares of vines spread out over four separate blocks, fully expressing the diversity of the appellation's clay-gravel soils.

Respectful viticulture, enhanced microbial life in the soil, mass selection and plot-by-plot fermentation using indigenous yeast help reveal the true personality of the wine.

Château Phélan Ségur is renowned for its finesse, controlled power, balance and freshness.

Sauternes or Barsac

The Sauternes appellation consists of five communes: Sauternes, Fargues, Bommes, Preignac, and Barsac. Barsac has its own separate appellation as well.

Sauternes is considered the finest white wine in the world by many connoisseurs. The jewel of Sauternes, Château d'Yquem was the only estate in either the Médoc or Sauternes to be classified a "Premier Cru Supérieur" in 1855.

The appellation is separated from the Graves on its western side by the Ciron valley. The Ciron River is responsible for the microclimate particularly conducive to the development of Botrytis cinerea, a fungus that concentrates the grapes and produces outstanding wines.

Château Bastor-Lamontagne

OWNER: SCEA TERRES BORDELAISES

“Nil Sine Fide, Nothing without Faith”

Château Bastor-Lamontagne is located in Preignac, in one of the five villages of the Sauternes appellation. The vineyard consists of 53 hectares of vines planted in a single block and surrounded by 35 hectares of woodland. The sandy-gravel and clay-limestone terroir produces very elegant wines with a great deal of freshness. The estate takes its name from Chevalier de la Montaigne, a councillor of the Bordeaux Parliament who acquired it in 1711. Indicated on Belleyme’s famous map dating back to the late 18th century, “Bastore” was considered a high-ranking estate from the outset. The château’s golden age, however, came in the 19th century under the management of Amédée Larrieu, who also owned Château Haut-Brion in Pessac.

Château Bastor-Lamontagne has always prized itself on making fruity, well-balanced wines. Often referred to as “modern Sauternes”, the estate’s well-balanced, elegant wines make them suited to all occasions. Although it ages very well, Bastor-Lamontagne is also delicious young thanks to its vivaciousness and elegance.

Château Broustet

GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: VIGNOBLES DE TERROIRS

Monsieur Capdeville, owner of Chateau Broustet, acquired the neighbouring estate, Chateau Nairac in the early 19th century. It was consequently referred to as “Broustet-Nairac” when it was ranked a second growth in the 1855 classification.

The Fournier family purchased Chateau Broustet in the late 19th century and set up a cooperage there. The model for the 225-litre barrique bordelaise, or Bordeaux barrel, is said to have been created at Broustet, a statement backed up by documents in the archives of the Bordeaux Chamber of Commerce. Located in Barsac, this magnificent property has belonged to Vignobles de Terroirs since 2010.

At the end of summer, morning mists warmed by the sun are conducive to the early and slow development of noble rot. The pebbles and scattered topazes store the sun’s heat and release it at night, which is ideal for producing overripe grapes. Once botrytised, these are picked by hand in several passes. The resulting wine is outstanding, and can be enjoyed both young, thanks to controlled acidity, accompanied by an explosion of citrus fruit notes, and after several years’ ageing, which provides a magnificent array of candied fruit aromas.

 @ChateauCoutet

 @ChateauCoutet

Recognised as one of the finest wines in its appellation, Château Coutet was ranked a first growth in 1855. Coutet is one of the oldest estates in the Sauternes region and has an outstanding architectural heritage and terroir. Château Coutet belonged to the Lur Saluces family for over a century and is currently owned and managed by Philippe and Dominique Baly, with technical and commercial assistance from Baron Philippe de Rothschild S.A., who have exclusive distribution rights.

The name "Coutet" comes from the Gascon word for "couteau", meaning "knife", in reference to the wine's fresh, vibrant acidity and unique crispness. When young, Château Coutet has aromas of white flowers, citrus, honey, and vanilla. Noble rot comes through with age, revealing a deep, delicate bouquet with hints of spice and candied fruit.

BARSAC

Château Doisy Daëne

GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNERS: FABRICE AND JEAN-JACQUES DUBOURDIEU

Château Doisy-Daëne, included among the second growths in the 1855 classification, is located in Barsac in the Sauternes appellation and has belonged to the Dubourdieu family since 1924. Four generations of winegrowers, from father to son, have made sweet white wines here for over eighty years: Georges (1924-1948), Pierre (1949-1999), Denis (2000-2016), followed by Jean-Jacques and Fabrice since 2016.

The wines have their own special style, with bright fruit concentrated by "noble rot" as well as lively acidity, excellent balance, and delicate flavours. Doisy-Daëne's style reflects both its excellent limestone terroir and long family tradition for producing high-quality, classy white wines that are powerful, fresh, and irrevocably young with a diamond-like purity.

The Chevaliers de Védrières owned this estate for centuries and gave their name to it.

Included in the 1855 classification, it was acquired by the present owners in the mid-19th century.

Doisy-Védrières is located on a clay-limestone plateau in Haut-Barsac. The soil is ploughed using traditional methods and the grapes are picked by hand in four or six passes. Fermentation and ageing take place exclusively in French oak barrels.

The combination of modern and traditional winemaking techniques gives Château Doisy-Védrières its trademark freshness and finesse typical of the finest wines of Barsac. Annual production varies from 40,000 to 50,000 bottles depending on the vintage.

When young, the wine is well-balanced and particularly delicious as an aperitif. Older vintages are a delight at the end of a meal.

SAUTERNES

Château de Fargues

OWNER: MARQUIS DE LUR SALUCES

Located in the prestigious Sauternes appellation, Château de Fargues has belonged to the Lur Saluces family since 1472, and serves as a unique example of a single family's long, unbroken ownership.

The family's history is intrinsically linked to the region and its wine.

The first Fargues vintage dates back to 1943, which explains why it was not listed in the official 1855 Bordeaux wine classification. Consequently, Fargues is a fine wine that is unclassifiable.

In just over 80 years, Château de Fargues has established a reputation as one of the most successful wines in the appellation.

The grapes are harvested meticulously in several passes and ageing takes place in barrels for thirty months to produce a wine of rare complexity, with remarkably long ageing potential, which stands among the family's greatest wines.

Quality always prevails, and every effort is made to capture the tremendous aromatics of Lur Saluces wines and put them into bottle.

 Château GUIRAUD

Château Guiraud, or the taste for emancipation.

In 1766, the Guiraud family purchased the Maison Noble du Bayle estate and gave it his name. Through their strongly asserted cultural and political values, the Guiraud family would mark the destiny of this magnificent 128-hectare property. Over the generations and vintages, Château Guiraud cultivated its unique signature: its black and gold label, its pioneering commitments to organic vineyard practices in favour of biodiversity, its fondness for Sauvignon Blanc...

In 2022, the destiny of Château Guiraud was handed over to Sandrine Garbay, a discreet woman respected for her indisputable expertise. Thanks to her impetus, Château Guiraud adopts all the freshness of a contemporary Sauternes with just the right amount of sweetness. The estate definitely stands as the devoted flagship of white and sweet white wines.

Clos Haut-Peyraguey

PREMIER GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: BERNARD MAGREZ

Peyraguey, whose name means a hill or promontory, is an ancient barony acquired during the 18th century by the President of the Bordeaux Parliament who was beheaded during the French Revolution. The estate was then acquired by Monsieur Lafaurie, followed by Monsieur Saint Rieul Dupouy, and later Count Duchatel in 1864. Following the death of Count Duchatel in 1879, the estate was divided into two parts and Clos Haut-Peyraguey was established. Clos Haut-Peyraguey is the smallest of the Sauternes first growths and the highest part of the vineyard, Haut-Bommes, has an outstanding terroir. The estate was then acquired by Parisian pharmacist Monsieur Grillon and handed over to the Pauly family in 1914. In late 2012, Bernard Magrez acquired this Sauternes Premier Grand Cru Classé and thus became the only estate owner of four great growths in Bordeaux.

Lafaurie-Peyraguey is located on an upper gravel terrace 70 metres above sea level in Sauternes.

The L'Enclos and Maisons Rouges plots represent the historic heart of the estate's terroir, consisting of gravel from the Quaternary period, deposited over 600,000 years ago on a limestone substratum.

The winemaking facilities benefit from specially-adapted equipment conforming to the latest environmental and regulatory standards and feature fully air-conditioned cellars.

Château Lafaurie-Peyraguey reflects Silvio Denz's passionate devotion to his work. He makes outstanding engraved bottles, inspired by the work of René Lalique.

"Femme et Raisins", created in 1928, was engraved in the woodwork of Pullman-Express sleeping cars, which were put into service in 1929. This engraving has appeared on Château Lafaurie-Peyraguey bottles from the 2013 vintage onwards.

Château de Rayne Vigneau

PREMIER GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

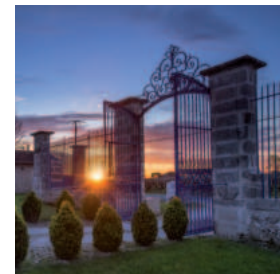

OWNER: FINANCIÈRE TRÉSOR DU PATRIMOINE

Château Rayne Vigneau is located on a magnificent and unique hill overlooking the Sauternes appellation, the highest point in the commune.

Since the estate was created in the early 17th century by Gabriel du Vigneau, there have been many generations of owners. The most famous was Madame de Rayne, born Catherine de Pontac, who acquired the estate in 1834. It is thanks to this particularly dynamic woman that the estate was promoted to Sauternes first classified great growth status during the famous 1855 classification and was crowned the best wine in the world in 1867.

Château de Rayne Vigneau benefits from an exceptional terroir, combining grey clay and asteriated limestone soil typical of the region. The semi-precious stones it contains contribute to the excellence of Rayne Vigneau. The alchemy of the terroir and meticulous precision winemaking which is respectful of nature helps to produce elegant, refreshing and delicious Sauternes wines.

In the 18th century, the Rieussec estate belonged to the Carmelite monks in Langon, and was ranked a Sauternes and Barsac first great growth. The 85-hectare vineyard is planted with Sémillon (81%), Sauvignon Blanc (17%), and Muscadelle (2%). Each vintage is aged in oak barrels primarily from the Tonnellerie des Domaines cooperage. Barrel ageing lasts from 16 to 22 months, depending on the vintage.

Château Rieussec is a unique estate nestled between Yquem and Fargues, overlooking the meeting point between the Ciron and Garonne rivers.

Château Sigalas Rabaud

PREMIER GRAND CRU CLASSE EN 1855

OWNER: THE LAMBERT DES GRANGES FAMILY

For six generations, the Sigalas family have put their heart and soul into making wine from this outstanding terroir, the smallest of the first growths, consisting of 14 hectares of vines in a single block. The estate is located between Chateau d'Yquem and the Ciron River, on a south-facing clay-gravel rise. This is where the Marquis de Lambert des Granges and his daughter, Laure, produce fine, fresh, and elegant Sauternes. These wines are refined and delicious when young, with a bouquet of lime blossom and white fruit, although they can often age for over a century.

The second wine, Lieutenant de Sigalas, is the first growth's "little brother" and is the result of a meticulous selection, combining the prestige of a fine wine with remarkable freshness.

This great terroir also produces two excellent dry white wines, Sémillante de Sigalas, made from old Sémillon vines, and Demoiselle de Sigalas, a blend of Sémillon and Sauvignon Blanc.

At the forefront of innovation, the Sigalas team produce a wine from 100% botrytised grapes with no added sulphur, labelled "le 5 de Sigalas".

Founded in the 17th century, Château La Tour Blanche is located in the village of Bommès in the heart of the prestigious Sauternes appellation. Several famous figures were closely linked with the history of the estate, such as Louis Pasteur, Ulysse Gayon and Frederic Focke, the latter catapulting the château to first place in the list of Sauternes first growths in the 1855 classification. The last private owner, Daniel Iffla, also known as "Osiris", the biggest patron of the 19th century and a philanthropist, decided to leave Château La Tour Blanche to the French government on the condition that a tuition-free School of Viticulture and Oenology be created there.

With its unusual history, now belonging to the Regional Council of Nouvelle-Aquitaine, the château benefits from ideal sun exposure with a magnificent terroir overlooking the Ciron River (a tributary of the Garonne), responsible for the unique microclimate conducive to the development of the famous "noble rot".

La Tour Blanche is committed to an ambitious environmental strategy, which has led it to obtain organic certification. Run by professionals, it also benefits from rigorous management to preserve its outstanding landscape while expressing its magical terroir.

Producing modern wines characterised by a perfect balance between concentration and freshness, the château is actively involved in the Sauternes revival and is developing a wine tourism offer to pass on its enthusiasm for Sauternes to others. With its unique history and dynamic approach, Château La Tour Blanche is an institution to (re)discover among the first growth Sauternes estates.

BORDEAUX

What if you discovered the Grands Crus in a different way?

GRANDS CRUS TASTINGS AND "HALLES GOURMANDES" FOOD MARKET

A highlight of the weekend, where over 110 members of the Union des Grands Crus de Bordeaux will invite you to taste two vintages, including the 2019. H14 will transform into a "Halles gourmandes" food market showcasing products from Southwest France. Specially selected local producers will suggest original food and wine pairings.

EXCLUSIVE GRANDS CRUS DINNERS

Grand Cru estate owners will welcome you to their châteaux to share unique moments. Several wines will be served throughout the dinner to offer you an overview of the diversity of the Bordeaux Grands Crus.

VINEYARD TOURS AND GOLF TOURNAMENT

Discover the finest Bordeaux appellations thanks to tours, tastings, and lunches in châteaux. Wine and golf lovers can also take part in a scramble golf tournament alongside estate owners.

“Bordeaux Grand Cru” by Riedel

This glass, first created in 1959 by Claus Riedel as part of the hand-made Sommelier collection, and later by Georg Riedel in 1986 as a machine-made version named Vinum, not a design gimmick but a precision instrument, developed to highlight the unique characteristics of fine Bordeaux wines. The large bowl brings out the full depth of contemporary wines made from Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc and Merlot.

Modern techniques enable winemakers to concentrate the fruit to such an extent that young wines may seem one-dimensional, tannic and over-oaked if served in smaller glasses.

The Bordeaux Grand Cru glasses give breathing space to both young and more mature wines, unpacking the various layers of the bouquet and delivering a full spectrum of aromas. On the palate, the texture of the wine - soft, silky, velvety - is intensified and the finish prolonged, gently blending acidity with smooth, sweet tannins. This is a glass that showcases these majestically structured red wines in all their complexity and finesse.

General Remarks

The list of members belonging to the Union des Grands Crus dates from January 15, 2024.

The updated list can be found at www.ugcb.net.

Please note that there is no classification for the wines of Pomerol.

Furthermore, seeing as the size of the crop varies from one year to the next, the production figures cited in this guide are only an indication, and represent an average annual figure. They also only relate to the "grand vin".

Likewise, the surface area mentioned reflects not the total size of the estate, but the area under vine.

In keeping with French law, the publishers cannot be held liable in instances of involuntary errors or omissions despite the considerable attention and quality control measures that went into producing this guide.
